NOT TO GET REBATE INTEREST

COMPANY WINNER

Special Master Wilson Finds Against Claimants in Test Cases to Collect Interest on First Period Rebates.

AMOUNT OF CLAIMS INVOLVED $125,000

Rules Gas Consumers Made Complete Settlement With Utility When They Endorsed Checks, Thereby Waiving Rights to Further Demands.

The Lincoln Gas company won its first victory in sixteen years of litigation over gas rates with the city of Lincoln, Tuesday morning, when Special Master Ralph Wilson filed his findings with the clerk of the federal court.

The findings concern only the claims of George H. DeLacy, Theo H. Berg and Harry G. Platt, who sought to force the company to pay interest on the rebates for the first period of overcharges after they had accepted and cashed the checks for the rebates proper. The amount involved in these three claims is supposedly less than $100 but the total amount effected by the finding is estimated at $125,000, which is the total amount of interest on the whole amount of rebates for the first period paid without interest by the company some years ago.

The special master finds in part: "That the claimants herein are not entitled to a recovery of any interest upon the principal rebates received by them as prayed for in their claims" and outlines three conclusions reached leading to this finding, which are as follows:

Releases Were Broad.

"1.—The releases contained upon the face of the vouchers cashed by claimants were sufficiently broad in their terms to include a release of the interest.

"2.—The claimants neither pleaded nor proved the existence of fraud, duress or mistake of fact with reference to said releases.

"3.—The releases are supported by consideration, to-wit, a bona fide dispute existed between the Gas company and its consumers at the time of the settlements, as to the liability of the company for the principal rebates and interest thereon and are therefore effective and binding."

When the company advertised that it would pay the rebates for the first period, those who applied for their rebates were given vouchers for the principal amount only and when they cashed these vouchers they signed an endorsement which read that that payment "settles and satisfies any and all claims and demands" against the company for the period covered. The special master finds that this endorsement was in effect a compromise over a disputed claim and that it is therefore binding upon the people who accepted it. Interest was liquidated and undetermined and those who settled with the company then cannot now take advantage of a later court decision which fixed and determined the liability of the company. His conclusions are also that the principal and interest were one debt and so the acceptance of the check for the rebate proper without interest was a settlement for the whole claim.

City to Accept Findings.

The city will accept the finding of the master before the federal court, C. Petrus Peterson, city attorney declared Tuesday when advised of the finding. The Gas company has never admitted that these were test cases, Mr. Peterson declared, but if the findings of the master are upheld in this case by the court, it will logically follow that all other similar claims would be treated in the same manner so the company will have won a complete victory in this one phase of the old case.

The finding does not in any way affect any except those who accepted first period rebates without interest and cashed their checks.

T. H. Berg, city clerk when told of the decision, declined to make any comment on the finding except to indicate that it was not entirely unexpected. He figures his claim amounted to about $20. The interest on these rebates was high because of the long period of years the company held the overcharges.

Commissioner Dayton, acting mayor, likewise declined to comment extensively on the findings. "It looks like E. Strode was right about the endorsement for those rebate checks," was all he would venture.

SUCCUMBS IN OFFICE

Wife Finds Carl Lundahl's Body on Floor of His Office in Fraternity Building—Death Believed Due to Heart Attack.

Carl Lundahl a masseur, 38 years old, living at 915 South Fourteenth street, and whose office was on the second floor of the Fraternity building, was found dead in his office shortly before 9 a. m. Tuesday by Mrs. Lundahl. The door of the office was locked. After entrance was effected, Mr. Lundahl was found lifeless on the floor.

Dr. H. D. Wilmeth was called and he declared that death had taken place perhaps six or seven hours before, and was probably due to heart trouble. The body was removed to Roberts' undertaking parlors. Deputy Sheriff C. A. Hughart made the official investigation. He did not believe an inquest would be necessary.

Chief of Police Peter Johnstone stated that Lundahl was known to have been in Omaha Monday. It is supposed that he came in during the night, and was taken sick.

CHILD IS BORN TO MRS. DULING

Trial of Husband Charged With Intent to Murder To Be Held Soon.

A daughter was born Sept. 26 to Mrs. Sarah Duling, whose husband, Homer, is charged with assault with intent to murder her, according to word received by Assistant County Attorney L. R. Doyle. Mrs. Duling is in a hospital at York.

Mr. Doyle stated that Duling's preliminary trial in justice court would be held soon. Duling has been arraigned in justice court and pleaded not guilty. He was released on $5,000 appearance bond, furnished by his mother, Mrs. Laura A. Duling of Raymond. Duling is in Lincoln. The complaint against him was signed by his wife's father, LeRoy Wright, of Waco.

Mrs. Duling has a 4-year-old son by her first husband, who was killed in France, September 12, 1918. She married Duling at David City early this year. Mrs. Duling is 22 and her husband 29. She received a bullet wound in her right temple while asleep in bed in her home about 5:30 a. m. July 23 last. Her husband slept in the same bed and a revolver containing one discharged shell and another which had been snapped but had not exploded was found in the bed.

SHROYER DENIES ENDORSING CODE

Humboldt Man Says Committee Report Was Misrepresented.

"The report made by the legislative committee of the farmers' union was not favorable to the code system" declared J. O. Shroyer of Humboldt, a member of the committee, while in Lincoln on Tuesday. Mr. Shroyer asserted that the report had been grossly misrepresented by the Omaha Bee, in the attempt to make it appear that the committee had endorsed the code.

"There is no truth in the Bee's story that we O. K.'d the code plan of government," he said. "It will be found, upon reading the full report, that we pointed out some serious faults in the system and recommended abolishing the six secretaries. I notice that the republican state committee is using the same garbled version that the Bee did, which entirely omits this portion.

"This is rank misrepresentation and unfair to the farmers' union of Nebraska, which has expressed itself in the state convention as favoring the repeal of the code law. Such methods are unworthy of any newspaper or political organization."

Says Her Baby Is Boy; Refuses To Accept Girl

JERSEY CITY, Oct. 3.—Five weeks ago when nurses at the Bergen sanitarium handed Mrs. Bertha Rich a baby, announcing it was her daughter, she declined to accept the child, declaring she had given birth to a boy.

The baby remained in the care of the mother's institute while Mrs. Rich and her husband, Edward, sought legal aid in an effort to prove that a mistake had been made by the hospital. Today Mr. and Mrs. Rich will appear before Poor Master George Murray who announces he will give them twenty-four hours to accept the child or face charges of abandonment.

BANCROFT IS CLOSED

Pupils of North Lincoln School Sent Home Following Discovery of Several Diphtheria Carriers — Situation Not Serious.

Discovery of numerous diptheria carriers among the pupils of the Bancroft school, Fourteenth and U streets, has resulted in the closing of that school, according to a statement Tuesday morning, of Dr. Chauncey F. Chapman, superintendent of health of Lincoln. The pupils were sent home on the recommendation of Dr. Katherine H. K. Wolfe, who has personal charge of the work to eradicate an incipient diptheria epidemic in the city.

Coincident with Dr. Chapman's announcement, Dr. Wolfe issued a statement that diptheria carriers have been found in the Whittier, McKinley and Longfellow schools. In all these schools all the pupils have had their throats examined, and several hundreds of throat cultures were taken. At the Bancroft school, nearly 500 cultures were taken last Thursday and Monday, and Dr. Wolfe said that the results of these cultures would be known Wednesday morning.

According to Dr. Chapman, there are now 48 suspected cases of diphtheria under observation in the city, and three known cases of the disease.

"At the Bancroft school," Dr. Wolfe declared, "we found quite a lot of children suffering from colds and temperatures. We took their cultures, and a number of carriers have been found. As a result the school was closed Monday and Tuesday. The parents were instructed to keep their children at home and away from other children, and send them back to school on Wednesday morning, when the results of the cultures will be known and further necessary action planned to check the oncoming epidemic. Most of the Bancroft pupils were found to have inflamed throats."

"One case of diphtheria was reported in Whittier school on Tuesday morning," Dr. Wolfe stated, "and I went to the Whittier school at once, accompanied by two nurses. We examined the throat of every child in the school and found the condition good. About 400 pupils were examined at the Whittier school. We found one carrier Tuesday morning, at the McKinley school. There we also examined the throats of all the children, but found conditions fairly good there too. At the Longfellow school we found several suspicious cases Monday afternoon. We found the general condition good there too."

Henry Jarms Quits As Emerald Justice

The resignation of Henry C. W. Jarms, of Emerald, as justice of the peace of Middle Creek precinct was accepted by the Lancaster county board of commissioners, Tuesday morning. Mr. Jarms is postmaster at Emerald and stated in his resignation that he discovered that he was not entitled to act as justice of the peace while serving as postmaster. He was elected justice of the peace in 1920 and took office in 1921.

Mr. Jarms was one of the six deacons and trustees of the St. John's Evangelical Lutheran church at Emerald who were convicted in district court here two weeks ago of discriminating against the use of the English language. They were denied a new trial and will appeal to the supreme court. On account of the absence of one of the convicted church officers they have not yet been sentenced. They were fined $25 each in justice court and appealed to the district court.

ORGANIZER HERE

Mrs. Katherine Conroy, organizer for the Women's Catholic Order of Foresters, arrived in the city Monday from the high court in Chicago. She is stopping at 701 South Twenty-fifth street.

STOCKHOLDERS OF SCHAAF COMPANY TO HOLD MEETING

To Take Action Concerning Receivership Proceedings.

May Also Elect Directors and Officers For Corporations.

A special meeting of the stockholders of the Nebraska Building & Investment company, a receivership for which is being demanded for the second time, has been called to take place in the Lincoln hotel, Lincoln, October 16, at 10 a. m., according to Frank C. Boehmer, one of the attorneys for the receiver in the first receivership action.

A majority of the preferred stockholders of the company have called the meeting. The company is now without a president, due to the resignation last week of F. E. Schaff, thus eliminating the necessity of serving him with a notice to call a stockholders' meeting. Mr. Schaaf also resigned as a member of the board of directors and two other directors, J. H. Gore and H. L. Lohmeyer, have tendered their resignations, and A. J. Schaaf is also understood to have tendered his resignation as a director. The other director is George H. Walters. Clarence E. Harman was elected by the board as a director to fill the vacancy caused by F. E. Schaaf's resignation.

Attorney Boehmer said there were about 970 preferred stockholders in the Nebraska Building & Investment company and less than two dozen common stockholders. Shares of stock represented to be worth about $1,500,000 are held by the preferred stockholders. There is about $25,000 worth of outstanding stock held by the common stockholders, of which F. E. Schaaf holds the controlling interest with nearly $15,000 worth of the common stock.

According to Mr. Boehmer, the articles of incorporation of the company deny the right to vote to the preferred stockholders, although the 1919 state legislature passed a law granting this right to preferred stockholders. Most of the persons holding common stock in the company were officers or directors, Mr. Boehmer stated.

A majority of the stock of the Nebraska Hotel company is owned by stockholders in the Nebraska Building & Investment company.

Thursday has been set as the tentative date for a district court hearing upon the accounting of the officers and directors of the company to ascertain, among other things, how their stock was obtained.

Negro Breaks Away From Policeman and Leaves Liquor Behind

A negro who was bringing a consignment of Omaha hooteh to Lincoln, got away from Officer Beals about 2:30 a. m., at the Burlington station, after making a vicious attack on the officer. Beals seized the liquor.

Beals was at the depot when the Omaha passenger train came in and saw the negro get off with a black grip. Suspecting that there was liquor in the grip, Beals placed the negro under arrest. The officer was calling the station for the patrol wagon, when the negro suddenly made a lunge at him with his fist, broke loose and ran down the street.

When the grip was brought to the station by Beals, and opened, it was found to contain five gallons of moonshine whisky.

Curio Buyer Is Victim of Poison In Ancient Ring

ZURICH, Switzerland, Oct. 3.—What is thought to be the person of the Fifteenth century Borgias has been transmitted to a curio collector here with serious effects. The collector recently bought a ring in Turin, Italy, made in the form of a serpent and guaranteed to be of the Borgia period. The buyer wore the ring and returning here found that his ring finger and forearm had swelled up. A doctor was called and declared that poisoning was due to the ring. Investigation proved that there was a small hole under the serpent's head, and from this the poison was emitted, but time had weakened its strength.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 3.—The Turkish cavalry has retired from its advanced positions in the Chanak area, deceasing the danger of conflict there.

This withdrawal which is described in messages from the Dardanelles as "slight," was supposed here to be in consequence of word received by the Turks that the Mudania conference was in session. The Turks, however, were said still to be well within the neutral zone.

Have Much Hope.

(International News Service.)

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 3.—Despite the seriousness of Turkish conditions, hope ran high here today that the Mudania conference would be successful in allaying the Near East war rumors.

The negotiations were scheduled for 11 a. m. with the allied generals—Ismel Pasha, Kemalist commander on the western front; Hamid Bey, Kemalist envoy to Constantinople, and Henri Franklin-Bouillon, pacification emissary of the British, French and Italians, all participating.

An invitation was extended to the Greek commander in Thrace to participate, but whether he accepted was not known at the time this dispatch was written.

Mustapha Kenal Pasha, commander in chief of the Turkish nationalist armies, was detained at Angora but it was said that he might reach Mudania before the armistice negotiations end.

The allied commanders, before leaving for Mudania held a meeting at which they agreed to present a united front to the Turks. It is understood that allied occupation of eastern Thrace pending the Near East peace conference would be suggested.

The Turks conditions as originally outlined were:

1—urkish gendarmerie shall aid the allies in policing Thrace.

2—Establishing of Turkish civil administration in eastern Thrace.

3—Evacuation of Thrace by Greek troops within eight days after the armistice is signed.

4—Occupation of the eastern bank of the Maritza river by allied troops to protect eastern brace from Greek attack.

Turkish troops continue to withdraw from the neutral zone on the straits. They have evacuated Bigha, a strategic point southeast of Chanak, from which, it was feared, an atack would be launched against the British positions at Chanak.

JOINT STUMP TOUR DASHED ON ROCKS

Howell and Andrews Separate When They Fail to Agree On Trip.

Held Opposite Views On the Esch-Cummins Railroad Law.

"Since you voted for the Esch-Cummins railroad law, while I am against it, I don't think it would be advisable for us to continue speaking from the same platform."

This is what R. B. Howell, republican nominee for United States senator, is reported to have said to Congressman W. E. Andrews, candidate for re-election, at the close of a meeting held in one of the towns in the Fifth district where both men spoke a week ago.

Whatever the fact may be, Messrs. Howell and Andrews separated after that meeting and have not appeared together since. Andrews is now going it alone in the Fifth, while Mr. Howell is traveling with C. H. Randall, candidate for governor, in the northern part of the state.

The Howell-Andrews split is understood to have been caused by the fact that one of them in his speech attacked the Esch-Cummins law, while the other defended it.

Candidates Howell and Randall have so far, in their joint tour, avoided any open disagreement by steering clear of the four referred laws. In the legislature Randall helped to pass every one of these laws, while Howell assisted in getting the referendum petitions circulated and filed.

Should either of them forget and say something for or against these laws, when the pair are speaking from the same platform, it might result in a rupture similar to that between Messrs. Howell and Andrews.

SHIP SUBSIDY IS ISSUE IN STATE CAMPAIGN-ALLEN

Democratic State Chairman Says Question Dragged in By Administration Officials.

Scores Plummer's Grand Island Talk Favoring Harding's Maritime Act.

The sending of a member of the national administration into Nebraska to speak for the ship subsidy and to advocate the election of republican senators and congressmen has made that question a live issue in the state campaign, declares Chairman T. S. Allen of the democratic state committee.

In a statement given out Tuesday morning, Chairman Allen suggests that the people of Nebraska are entitled to know whether or not the republican campaign managers and candidates stand with the Harding administration on the ship subsidy issue, or not.

Allen points out that President Harding vetoed the soldier bonus bill on the ground that there was no money to pay it, but is nevertheless insisting on the passage of a measure to pay ship owners a bonus or subsidy. The voters, he says, have a right to know whether the republican managers and candidates are willing to accept support from administration subsidy advocates, and what their own attitude is on the question.

Following is the statement of Chairman Allen:

Rich Gift to Ship Owners.

"I have just read the press report of a speech delivered at Grand Island by E. C. Plummer of the United States shipping board. He is evidently in Nebraska representing the administration, creating sentiment for a subsidy or bonus to shipowners. The bill he is advocating proposes to sell $3,000,000,000 worth of ships, the best in the world, mostly oil burners for $200,000,000 and pay the purchasers a bonus of $750,000,000 in such a way that they can pay for the ships out of the bonus and have over a half billion dollars left.

"The republican congress has just enacted a tariff law, soon in effect, that puts an average duty of 44 per cent on every thing the people of the west use, and estimated to cost the American people at least $4,000,000,000 annually an amount now equal to the total revenue required to run the government. Of this vast sum only about one quarter of a billion will go to the government as revenue under the most favorable foreign trade conditions. The other three and three-quarters billions will go as bonus to the manufacturers of the east, and add to the cost of living this amount. Now, to add to the burden, a ship subsidy is proposed by the republican administration, that has no money to pay a bonus to the soldiers who were drafted and required to leave their business to do the country's fighting.

Boosts for G. O. P. Candidates.

"From the press report, Mr. Plummer is advocating the election of the republican candiates because he say, it will encourage the president to push the subsidy bill, while the success of the democratic candidates will have the opposite effect. The questions every citizen should ask are these: Is the republican state committee sponsoring Mr. Plummer? Is the republican state committee advocating the election of candidates favoring a ship subsidy? Is the republican state committee in accord with President Harding and his administration on this question? For the democratic committee and candidates, I can answer 'No,' to each of these questions.

"These are vital issues in this campaign and the people are entitle to know just what tthe parties and candidates stand for."

Chairman Perry of the republican state committee said in reply to a query that Plummer was not brought to Nebraska by the regular party organization. He did not go so far however as to repudiate the efforts of the administration ship subsidy booster to secure votes for republican senatorial and congressional candidates on the ground that their election would aid the subsidy cause.

FIRES ARE DANGEROUS

High Winds In Minnesota Drive Timber Blaze From Control of Forces Battling Them and Lives of Many Settlers Threatened.

(Associated Press.)

DULUTH, Oct. 3.—Heavy winds have driven the forest fires in the territory north and west of Duluth out of control and the situation was so serious this afternoon that the combined forestry and military forces were concentrating all efforts on removing settlers and protecting buildings, according to G. M. Gonzett, forestry field administration chief.

Will Run Together.

ST. PAUL, Oct. 3.—A thirty-five mile wind early today was driving the fires in the Kelsey, Sax, Meadowland and Fernay districts, according to reports at the office of the state forester and fire fighters reported that there was little prospect of preventing the fires from running together Sparks from the fires were dropping a quarter of mile away.

Seventeen fires are burning in these three districts and some have swept into the highlinds, threatening to creep into vluable timber stands, according to reports.

The largest fire is burning on a 12-mile front and is almost solid from Sax to Elsmore, according to reports which say that the new fires are springing up almost continuously.

Rangers report there is little probability of any loss of life as virtually all persons living in the threatened district have been removed to places of safety.

TOGA TO A WOMAN

Mrs. W. H. Felton, Widow of Former Georgia Congressman Becomes First Feminine Member of U. S. Senate—Appointed By Governor.

SELECTED TO FILL WATSON VACANCY

New Senator One of Best Known in South and Well and Favorably Known Throughout Governmental Circle at Washington.

(Associated Press).

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 3.—Mrs. W. H. Felton of Carterville, Ga., became the first woman member of the United States senate today when she was appointed by Governor Thomas W. Hardwick to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Thomas E. Watson, until the people elect a successor in November.

At the same time Governor Hardwick announced his candidacy to succeed United States Senator Thomas Watson, Georgia, who died last week in Washington. The primary will be held on October 17.

Whether Mrs. Felton will actually have an opportunity to qualify and serve as a member of the senate is doubtful for her successor will have been elected when the senate meets in December.

Mrs. Felton is the widow of Dr. W. H. Felton, of Cartersville, Ga., who served as a member congress for several terms. She has long been active in Georgia politics. Many years before the women were granted the right of suffrage, Mrs. Felton managed her husband's campaign and stumped the district in his behalf. She was a friend of the late Senator Watson and supported Governor Hardwick in his recent campaign for renomination.

The new senator has taken an active and influential part in political campaign in Georgia for many years. On several occasions she addressed the state legislature and has served as a member of the board of visitors of the University of Georgia.

Mrs. Felton has a wide acquaintance with leaders in national affairs and in 1921 conferred with President Harding while he was visiting in St. Augustine, Fla., prior to assuming the presidency.

Accepts Appointment.

Mrs. Felton announced her acceptance of the appointment.

Governor Hardwick in a statement said he had offered the appointment to Mrs. Watson, the widow of the late senator, "but to my deep and real regret Mrs. Watson has conveyed the information to me that ill-health and an aversion to the public station in her own name renders it impossible for her to accept."

The statement then continued: In all the circumstances I have therefore concluded to bestow the honor of this appointment upon another noble Georgia woman. The lady I have selected for the appointment is now and has been for many years the warm and loyal friend of the distinguished Georgian, whom she temporarily succeeds in this high office. She is my own loyal devoted and dearly loved friend. She is splendidly fitted to adorn the highest public station in the land. She wields the gifted pen of a cogent and forceful writer and has all the qualities of heart and head that equip one for broad and constructive statesmanship. She is wise, even beyond her years, and is glorious in the sunset of a splendid and useful life. She is known and loved throughout eGorgia, the south and the country as Georgia's foremost woman citizen."

Governor Hardwick said Mrs. Felton would serve until the general election November 7, when a successor to fill the unexpired term will be chosen.

"Under the circumstances" the statement said, "I should hesitate to make any appointment if the laws of Georgia did not require."

Sends Message to Governor.

Mrs. Felton at her home in Carterville, dictated a message to Governor Hardwick, accepting the appointment. She declared it was "with mingled feelings of personal gratitude and profound admiration for your courage in thus placing so far as your office allows, a woman in the ranks of the most exalted body in the known world," that she accepted the place.

"It's going to thrill the nation," she declared. Mrs. Felton said it was "eminently fitting" that the position had first been tendered to Mrs. Watson.

Mrs. Felton was born in DeKalb county, Georgia, June 10, 1835, the daughter of Charles and Eleanor Lattimer, the former a native of Maryland. She was married in 1853 to Dr. H. W. Felton, who died in 1909. Five children were born to them but only one, Dr. Howard E.

MISS BONNER CONTRALTO, AT MATINEE MUSICALE.

Elizabeth Bonner, contralto from New York who appeared before the opening meeting of the Matinee Musicale, Monday afternoon at the Temple theatre, was an artist in every sense of the word. Her perfect control, combined with the velvet richness of her voice and her great dramatic ability won her audience from the beginning of her first number which was a heavy aria "Ah, rednimi," by Rossi. There was no weak spot in the artist's voice, every register was as clear and round as it should be without even a hint of a break. Miss Bonner has a wide range to her credit, also and her power of interpretation was a marvel to her hearers.

Miss Bonner's second group was made up of three Italian songs, and three French songs. Her pronunciation and enunciation in her foreign and English songs were perfect. The order of her French group was changed a little from the way they were given on the program. Her first French number was "Il L'esclave" by Lalo, which was followed by "Chanson Florlant," Godard, and "Alger! Le Soir," by Fourdrain. For an encore to this group, Miss Bonner gave "An Open Secret" by Woodman.

The third group consisted of four Russian-American songs in English, followed by Metcalfe's "The Rose and the Lily" for an encore.

The last group was entirely in English, and the variety of type in this group showed the versatile ability of the singer to advantage. Particularly pleasing was the old Irish melody, "Rendemeer's Stream."

Miss Bonner chose "My Ain Folk" by Lemon, for an encore after this group, and as encore to an encore she gave "You'll eGt Heaps O' Lickkens," by Clarke.

The following is the program with Louise Zumwinkle Watson at the piano:

GRANTS TIME TO DECIDE ON PAVING

Council Gives Rock Island Another Week to Consider Viaduct Matter.

The paving of the approaches to the Holdrege street viaduct over the Rock Island tracks was delayed one more week by common consent between the city commission and Judge E. P. Holmes, Monday afternoon after a half hour of heated discussion between the representative of the railroad and Commissioners Bryan and Dayton. At the end of the week, it is understood the railroad will make a definite promise or the city will proceed to order the paving in.

Judge Holmes explained that the bridge is too low to meet federal specifications and is dangerous to a brakeman on a box car. It is planned to raise the bridge and the railroad wants the paving delayed until the new bridge is built. Mr Bryan offered a substitute plan prepared by George Bates, city engineer, which provides for the paving of the street on a grade to meet the proposed new bridge this being flattened out near the top to meet the present bridge for temporary purposes.

The city commission was very evidently behind Commissioner Bryan in his determination to end a two year old fight with the Rock Island. Mr. Dayton declared that the city could never get action out of a railroad within a reasonable time and added that the commission had come to look at promises and blue prints from railroads as of little or no value. Judge Holmes at one time warned Mr. Bryan that if the city ordered the paving put in he would enjoin it and would delay the work six months but Mr. Bryan declared he did not believe the railroad could afford to provoke the people by such action. Judge Holmes declared that the Rock Island is prosperous and that the question is one of time and labor and not of money.

It was finally agreed that the Rock Island would make a definite promise when it will pave the street at next Monday's meeting or wil definitely announce its intention not to pave this year at all. "Shoot squarely with the council we will meet you half way," Commissioner Dayton, acting mayor declared, and Judge Holmes departed with a smile. "Just where we were more than a year ago," commented Commissioner Bryan as the attention of the council was turned to other matters.

CHAPTER LXXXV.

Adelaide Brown went back upstairs to her room. The rings were found. She could go home now.

But first she must pack up her belongings. This she did rapidly, not giving herself time to stop, to appreciate that her head was aching, and that she needed food to fortify her after the strain of last evening.

She had not many effects here .All she had were soon packed into her small trunk.

There was yet another task to be performed. She must leave a note for Mr. Hollingshead. She hoped she could slip out of the house without seeing him or his son.

Seating herself at the desk, she penned her parting message to the man who had been her employer.

"Dear Mr. Hollingshead," she wrote. "The rings are back in Miss Patricia's jewelry case. Whoever removed them from the drawer of the dressing-table, where I had put them, restored them to the jewel case. I give you my word of honor that I did not do this. I hope you may believe me. But so long as the rings are safe, it makes no difference who was responsible for their disappearance. Please do not worry about it. I shall not.

"My duties here are done and I am going home. I promised to stay as long as I could be of use. Now I would but be in th eway. I want to thank you for all the kindness you have shown me while I have been in your employ. I shall not forget it—nor the dear lady I attended. I am very sorry for you, dear Mr Hollingshead—more sorry than I can ever say.

'ADELAIDE BROWN."

When she had put on her hat and coat Adelaide took the letter downstairs. She did not pause as the room whose inmate had suffered here for so many weeks. The girl had a strange sense of peace when she thought of that bound spirit as free at last.

Adelaide Goes Away.

In the drawing-room Estelle was moving about softly, dusting. She started with surprise as Adelaide entered.

"Oh Miss!" she exclaimed. "Are you going out so early—and with no breakfast?"

The maid's eyes were red from weeping, and Adelaide spoke kindly to her.

"Yes, Estelle, I am going to my own home now. I am not needed here any longer."

"Oh, ma'am, it's awful!" Estelle said, emotion making her voice break. "Poor, dear Mrs. Hollingshead!"

Adelaide shook her head. She felt strangely calm. "Not 'poor' Mrs. Hollingshead, now," she corrected. 'She is free from pain, and is at peace. Why," with a swift smile, "one can almost envy her. But you will miss her, I know. You have been good and faithful. That ought to be some comfort to you.

"Listen," as the girl dried her eyes "Please give this letter to Mr. Hollingshead when he comes downstairs. Jhope he is sleeping now."

"I hope so, ma'am. Mr. Richard was up very early—but he went back to his room to lie down again. I guess. As I come downstairs just before seven I seen him comin' very quiet-like out of Miss Patricia's room. I don't know what he was doin' there that early."

Now She Understands.

Adelaide did not speak for a moment. She was remembering how yesterday morning on her way downstairs, she had heard some one come out of her room. Had it been Richard—and had he taken the rings at that time to spite her because of what had happened between Carter and herself? If so had he repented and restored the jewels to their place so as to free her from further suspicion?

She might be suspected of returning them herself in a panic at discovering that they were missed.

She shook her head. She could not understand the workings of a mind or conscience like that of the rich young man of this house. She would rather not try just now to understand. Her head felt too light and queer for any connected thinking.

"Good-by, Estelle," she said "Thank you for all you have done to make my stay her pleasant. Please get yourself a triffle—a handkerchief or something—to remember me by, with this," pressing a dollar into the girl5s hand.

'Oh, thank you, miss!" Estelle exclaimed, smiling tremulously.

"And will you do one thing more for me?" Adelaide asked. "Here is a two-dollar bill. Will you get just a little bunch of violets, or a few small roses, and put them in the coffin, close to dear Mrs. Hollingshead, unless Mr. Hollingshead objects? If you explain how much I wanted this. I do not think he will mind."

"I know he won't," Estelle quavered. "Oh, miss, you are not going without any breakfast?" as Adelaide moved toward the door.

'Yes, I am," Arelaide insisted. "I could not eat now. I will send for my trunk later in the day," she added. 'Good-by, Estelle. Close the front door softly after me so that Mr. Hollingshead will not be disturbed."

Then she went quickly down the steps of the huge house for the last time.

To be continued.

Traction Company Stockholders Will Get More Stock

An impending distribution of additional securities to shareholders in the Lincoln Traction Co., in lieu of dividends which they have failed to receive during the past four and a half years, is thought to be involved in an application filed by the company with the state railway commission Monday for authority to issue $140,068 more of bonds or preferred stock.

This amount is represented by the company as the equivalent of additions and betterments it has made since 1918. It has already been authorized to issue about $340,000 of preferred stock which has never been sold.

Something like $241,000 is claimed to have been spent for plant improvements during the time mentioned, butoffsets of $101,000 are now charged against this because of the property abandoned and amortized or charged off on the books.

Old cars have been scrapped or dismantled, amounting to $67,000 and the materials used otherwise. The abandonment of Twelfth street yielded materials worth $48,000. Other track savings were made in the abandonment of Holdrege street, and South Twenty-sixth, and the Normal College View line.

Plans Completed For Annual Picnic Of Sunday Schools

The Lancaster County Sunday School association will hold its annual picnic and parade Saturday, beginning at 11:30 a. m. and extending well into the afternoon. Large representations from schools outside of Lincoln are to participate and the parade is expected to be longer and more elaborate than ever before.

Floats are being prepared by the various Sunday schools at expense of time and effort. All participants are asked to meet at 11 o'clock on North Twelfth street between R and O streets, where the procession will start. It will go from there to O street and east to the entrance of Antelope park at Twenty-third street.

The picnic dinner will be eaten at 12:30 near the band stand and the afternoon program will begin at 2 p. m. A graded story hour for boys and girls will be in charge of Mrs. Benjamin A. Cram, Mrs. C. O. Bruce, Mrs. O. W. Lowe, Mrs. Alona C. Little and Mrs. Etta M. Warner.

For the adults a program has been arranged consisting of addresses by Judge W. M. Morning, Dr. Albert J. Croft, pastor of the First Methodist church University Place, and Prof. J. K. Shellenberger of Cotner university.

Athletic contests for all ages will conclude the festivities.

Governor Lays Off to Go Duck Hunting

After making three speeches for the republican ticket in northern Nebraska last week, Governor McKelvie is taking a layoff from campaign activities and officials duties and is enjoying a duck hunt in Cherry county. He will spend two or three days there and then return to Lincoln.

General Fund Deficit Doubled in September

The overdraft in the state general fund of Nebraska was doubled during the month of September, increasing from $155,487 to $318,051. By the end of October, the general fund will be "in the red" half a million or more.

In addition, the contractors on state highway work have received no warrants so far on this year's construction projects though some of them are approaching completion. The state's share of this work amounts to $900,000, and three-fourths of this amount is now owing; but the contractors must wait until new tax revenues come in after December 1 before they can even get their warrants.

Total receipts of the state treasury in September were $803,399, while the expenditures amounted to $868,851.

October starts with a big payroll and other large expenditures which will rapidly increase the general fund deficit.

Asks Opinion on Separate Ballot

Although the constitution of Nebraska, and also the revised election law, requires constitutional amendments and initiative and referendum propositions to be printed on a separate ballot when they are submitted to the voters, Secretary of State Amsberry has asked Attorney General Davis for an opinion as to whether the four referred laws should be placed at the top of the regular election ticket, or on another sheet by themselves.

He got an inquiry from a county clerk, calling attention to the sample form of the ballot in the red edition of the statutes, which was not changed to conform to the new constitution, though the law itself was.

Mr. Amsberry wants to know whether he should go by the sample form as it appears in the book, with referendum propositions at the top of the main ballot, or do what the constitution and the law says should be done, by printing them on a separate ballot.

He will be informed by the attorney general that the constitution and the laws govern, and that the propositions must go on a ballot where no candidates' names, appear.

Under the old law, constitutional amendments submitted by the legislature were voted upon as part of the regular ballot. It was customary for political parties to endorse them, and straight away with, and the referred laws will be voted upon without any party desgnation.

HIGH HURDLES TO BE TAKEN BEFORE RACE WON BY U. S.

Thomas Lamont Paints Word Picture of America's Position In World Affairs.

Declares Many Bars Still In Path of Prosperity—Touches On Debts.

(Associated Press).

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—A picture of America recovering from the "rude buffets and deep wounds" of 1917 to 1921, and with characteristic courage binding up her bruises and slowly moving forward to new goals, was drawn today by Thomas W. Lamont, associate of J. P. Morgan, in an address before 10,000 delegates at the convention of the American Bankers' association.

"But we have not yet cause for unbounded confidence," he cautioned the bankers. "We must not forget that before the race is won we still have some high hurdles to jump."

These bars in the path to full prosperity, he enumerated as:

"1—Low prices prevailing for farm products.

2—Labor strikes.

3—The soldier bonus.

4—The new tariff act.

5—The foreign situation, with respect to reparations, allied loans and international trade.

Discussing reparations and inter-allied debts, Mr. Lamont raised two questions: "Do our former allies really owe us all the debt?" And are we doing our full share to solve the tragic questions that are weighing upon the world?"

Fate Determines Choice.

"One thing is certain," he declared. "If someone, on April 4, 1917, had been able to give us our choice as to whether we should rather give up freely and for all time, five billion dollars or give up the lives of several hundred thousands of our sons, there would have been no hesitation as to our choice.

"Fate, however, determined that choice. It determined that Great Britain and France should give up the lives during that first year and that we should furnish, not our blood but our money; taking, however, in place of it, the promises to pay of our allies.

"No other policy could have been followed at that time, I grant you, but now that the war is behind us and we can take a long look back is it wise for us is it just is it generous to make some composition of this matter?"

Mr. Lamont sought to console the farmers, who, he said, complain that "though this is a big season for crops, our net money gain will be small."

Will Not Argue Low Prices.

"I shall not attempt to argue the point of lower prices," continued the financier. "But I never knew a country to go broke because of its abundant crops . . . I think the low price hurdle the easiest one to jump. The farmers had higher prices in 1919 and 1920 but the aftermath was a serious one for them. In the long run, they like all of us will fare better on a moderate price scale with small fluctuations."

Labor strikes rise as one of the most serious obstructions to prosperity, Mr. Lamont declared, even though the worst may now seem to be over. He asked his audience to remember that in this country there are still traces of arrogance among employers as there are manifest signs of arrogance in labor."

President Harding's veto of the bonus bill with its threat to tax billions more out of the American people and distribute it in such a way so probably no one would receive real benefit "temporarily leaped that hurdle and created a feeling of relief," Mr. Lamont said.

Faults Tariff Bill.

Of the tariff he said:

"We shall be fortunate indeed, if we do not find that in practice, it protects a lot of industries that do not require protection and cuts from our farmers and manufacturers a lot of foreign markets that are ready to buy our commodities.

"If there is any one motto which American producers and legislators should learn by heart, it is the oft-repeated one of the British merchants, who, over a century ago, declared, 'He who will not buy, neither shall he sell.'"

Even with "the sick man of Europe,' the Turk, suddenly alive and kicking," the Greeks all around the lot with Russia, German and Austria what they are, and with Ireland in a ferment, it is dangerous," declared Mr. Lamont, 'to say that Europe has 'gone all to pot.'"

Invisible forces are saving Europe, he said, adding "politically Europe may be in the doldrums or worse; but economically, I for one, believe she is on the mend."

Reparations Serious One.

"Reparations," Mr. Lamont said, "has now reached a stage in the public opinion of both America and Europe, secondary to inter-allied indebtedness because," he declared, "it is generally recognized that Germany cannot or will not ever pay anything like the reparations total fixed in the Versailles treaty."

"Now let us, as practical men, determine what, if any of these debts (allied debts to America) are in event uncollectable and so should be written off, in order to quit fooling ourselves," he suggested to the bankers.

"Let us decide what others of these debtors are good in part, but must be given ample time to pay, emphatically let us figure whether the payment of these debts—which inevitably must mean a great increase in our import and a heavy decrease in our export trade, is going to prove an asset or a liability for American business men.

U. S. Has Responsibility.

"Finally, he concluded, "do not forget that as the nations of Europe face great dangers, America, too, is facing a crisis though of a different order. We have gained great power. With the power goes responsibility. Have we discharged it? For the period of the world war, my answer is, yes, a thousandfold, yes. For the period since the armistice can anyone of us search his heart and answer: Yes? We have, it is true, offered criticism to the nations of Europe. We have shouted advice acvross to them. But we have been timid and fearful of the petty entanglement. Now we have, it would seem, come to the parting of the ways.

Shall we meet the responsibility that has come without power? Or shall we fail? Shall you and I give our minds, our understandings and our sympathy to these problems or shall we stand aside and add to our national stock of gold? Shall we urge upon our national government active co-operation in the councils of the mother country and of the old world or shall we keep silent?"

CHAPTER 763.

For some time after Jeanie and Phoebe left me to meet Jim at the strictly Harrison lunch to which I was not bidden, I made spasmodic efforts to work. But when I realized that my attention simply wouldn't focus, and that I wasn't in a mood to do justice to any job, I decided to go out for a malted milk and a brisk walk.

Leaving the office in Frank's charge I trotted out and walked a mile. Then, in pursuance of my rigid plan, I marched into a drug-store and forced myself to drink the coffee and malted milk I didn't want. Another brisk constitutional, and I hurried back to the office, glad that the hour was over and that I could get back to work—the one thing which would distract my mind from its own personal trials.

Hardly, however, had I managed to get down to work when Ralph Lacy called me on the telephone.

"Hello, Mrs. Harrison,' he said briskly. 'Can you drop everything and start down here at once?"

"Must I?" I asked, finding myself with a sudden distaste for making any kind of effort.

"I think you must,' came back with genial insistence. "Your husband is on the way here I got him started on the jump the minute he called me on the wire. I think you'd better start right along.'

"I will, I said without further parley. "See you presently. Good-bye."

Then with a feeling of tense anticipation, I got ready and went out to ask Frank to hail me a taxi. Then I stopped to give a message to Miss May and Betty.

"The A. L. Harrison Company seems to be composed of everybody but A. L. H. these days," I began apologetically. "Here I am off again."

Miss May looked at me with something in her eyes that verged on a question. But Betty got up and came over to take my hand in both of hers.

"This may be hard on your partner," said Betty, with so much of understanding in her face that I felt as if we'd been transported back to the days when I was a timid and blundering bride and she my aid and comforter. "But as far as I'm concerned, it's a grand chance for me to prove my metal. I'm afraid that I may have looked like one of those clean-sweeping while new brooms you hear so much about. But I'm hoping that in some measure I'll make up to Miss May for your absences."

"Of course it's never the same without Mrs. Harrison," said Miss May, with one of her quick flares of response. "But if anyone could cover the big discrepancies and gaps and things you leave when going to attend to the big affairs we both hear a-calling you—its my Betty Winston, bless her!"

"Taxi, Ma'am!" announced Frank from the doorway.

"All right!" I called. "Run down, please, and tell him I'm on my way."

Then I turned to the two who are so nobly standing by and I said earnestly:

"If ever there were two splendid, loyal friends and co-workers, I've managed to draw them in the not always so fair and generous lottery of life."

"Run along with you," laughed Betty unsteadily. We have lots of fun on the job, but we can't afford dramatics."

It was just the right note. It gave me a sense of security. However things go amiss. I have at least this to count on—my business and its established and interested allies. Stopping only to draw the check in full payment of my note and to instruct Miss May what to do if it were presented during my absence, I hurried down to the waiting taxi and set off for Mr. Lacy's office.

All during the drive down I tried to fortify myself for the meeting with Jim. I had no idea what his attitude would be, and I felt that I must meet him more than half way on any basis he selected. When I got to Mr. Lacy's office I found Jim in earnest conversation with Mr. Lacy. He arose to his feet with the same punctilious courtesy Ralph Lacy showed, but he did not come near me. This of course could pass muster as his dignified avoidance of any demonstration before a third person. But Ralph Lacy's cordial greeting made Jim's icy demeanor hurt me the more.

"I've been giving Mr Harrison a resume of our activities Mrs Harrison" he explained as we all found seats. "I think he has a full working 'scenario' I've told him frankly and honestly that with you to get hold of salient points and with the various channels a newspaper man can work through I think we're going to run down the last of the clique that's been annoying him—and soon. It's all clear, isn't it, Mr. Harrison?"

"You've not missed a point," replied Jim, turning to Mr Lacy the cordial warmth of his friendliest smile. "I'm not trying to thank you, old man, because I know you're the sort of a chap who does things like this out of real friendliness and neighborliness. I feel that Mrs. Harrison had a real streak of luck when she ran across you. I want to congratulate her on her good judgment in turning to you."

"Oh, that's all right! Mrs. Harrison and I are real pals" said the other man boyishly. "We've a lot of business interests in common, and her dear little partner is my adopted aunt. It means a lot to a lonely chap like me to make such friends. We're a dandy group, and if you just take the kind of a shine I'm looking for to old Park—my missing chum—all will be hunky-dory."

This peculiar word told me that Ralph Lacy was talking against time—that he was uneasy—waiting for something to eventuate and filling in the moments with very little consciousness of how he did it. But at the sound of Park's name Jim reacted Harrison fashion.

"Park—he said slowly. "You don't mean Wayne Parkinson Third, do you? I wasn't told of his interest in—my affairs."

He was jovial and complacent at the mention of this aristocratic name. Out of my annoyance at his failure once to address me, I made a second grievance at his snobbish reaction to the suggestion that Wayne Parkinson Third had entered into the matter.

"Sure—old Park is my chum—the best friend I've ever had," replied Ralph Lacy carelessly. "But if he's fallen down on this, I'll have his scap. I was trusting him to get—Mr. Lee here."

The barely perceptible pause told me that he'd held himself back from saying "Dad Lee" and identifying with with the father who must soon be revealed in all his disloyalty.

And then—as it so often does in moments of crisis—the telephone broke in with its jangling signal. Mr. Lacy took down the receiver, spoke a few low words and then held out the receiver to me. I noticed that his hand shook and that his eyes were large with excitement.

"Will you listen in on that other 'phone, the one on the table?" he asked, nodding to Jim.

Obediently Jim took down the second receiver. He didn't glance at me, but stood with the receiver glued to his ear while over the wire came Dad Lee's quavering voice.

"Anne—that you?" he asked. There was no pretense at affection now, no fatherly joviality. "This is Dad Lee," he continued. "I got a message for you. I can't bring myself to come up and tell it to your face I got to say it my way, Anne—are you listening? There's a buzz on the wire."

"I'm listening," I said, steadying the telephone. "The connection is poor but I'm listening."

"Then—I got to tell you something that'll stagger you, Anne—my boy—my Dick—Dick West, has run his last race. Dick is dead."

(To Be Continued.)

September Was Unusually Warm; Rainfall Lacking

The temperature in Nebraska during September ranged from 106 on the first to 45 degrees on the eleventh. The warmth was above normal, and since Jan. 1 the average daily excess in temperature has been 2.7. There were no killing frosts during the month.

As the heat has been greater, so has the rainfall been less. In September the state fell below the average monthly precipitation by .52 inches, bringing the deficiency since the first of the year to 3.50 inches.

The mean temperature for the month was 72 degrees, the highest since 1897, and the mean precipitation was 2.12 inches, as compared with 2.81 in 1921, 1.44 in 1920 and 5.75 in 1919.

These facts are contained in a bulletin issued by G. A. Loveland, meteorologist in charge of the Lincoln weather bureau station.

MAKING EFFORT TO HAVE LEGION OPPOSE A BONUS

Election of Commander Will Be Fought Around the Compensation Issue.

Antis Lining Up Forces and Look to South for Support.

(International News Service.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—A big drive by administration supporters to kill the soldiers' bonus issue by the election of a national commander opposed to adjusted compensation for ex-service men at the American legion national convention at New Orleans two weeks hence was well under way today.

Hanford MacNider, the present national commander, and his aides in the unsuccessful fight for the bonus at the recent session of congress, declared that the issue would unquestionably be fought all over again at the New Orleans gathering.

Col. Thomas W. Miller, alien property custodian and a world war veteran, who was renamed recently as Delaware's representative on legion's national committee, is expected to figure prominently at New Orleans among those urging that the position of President Harding in vetoing the bonus bill be sustained by the convention. In addressing the convention of the Delaware department of the legion at Wilmington, while the bill was still before congress, Miller declared that it had "resulted in placing the ex-service men of the country in a false light before a great number of their fellow citizens for whom they fought."

Depending On South.

The anti-bonus forces in the New Orleans convention are depending for a great addition to their ranks from the delegates from the southern states, where opposition to the bonus has developed because of what as the proposed "distribution of a largess among negro ex-service men."

The argument is being advanced by anti-bonus speakers in the south that the payment of a bonus to the negro ex-service man would cause him to suspend his labor in the cotton field and tobacco plantation until his money was all spent.

MacNider and his associates said today they were going to New Orleans well prepared for a "hot fight."

Leading bonus advocates in and out of congress are being urged to address the convention and Senator McCumber, of North Dakota, chairman the senate finance committee and Representative Fordney of Michigan, chairman of the house ways and means committee as joint authors of the bonus bill the president vetoed, have been invited to speak there in behalf of bonus legislation.

The stand taken by the convention on the bonus question will be closely watched by polical leaders and observers of both the republican and democratic parties in anticipation of the possible effect it may have on the November congressional elections. Great importance was attached by some administration senators to the kind of new national commander the convention will select as a result of the expected battle between the pro-bonus and anti-bonus delegates to it.

MINERVA'S MAIL

Take Your Troubles to Minerva

Smooth Rough Edges.

Dear Minerva: I am also coming to you for some of your excellent advice. I have been going with a man for nearly a year now. I think a great deal of him. He tries to treat me as he should, but he has some very odd ways. In fact sometimes he is very discourteous when he does not mean to be at all. Now should I say anything to him about these things or should I let them go? At times it annoys me greatly, but at the same time I do not want to make him angry by speaking of it.

What are some good and suitable gifts for a girl to give a man on either his birthday or at Christmas. Is is very improper for a girl to accept anything from a man except flowers, candy, stationery, etc., if they are not engaged? THANK YOU.

A. Can't you suggest in a tactful and kind way to your friend that he sometimes unintentionally hurts your feelings. Tell him that perhaps you are peculiar in your desires, or perhaps he does not understand the little things that please women and ask if he would mind your making a suggestion now and then of trifling changes in his manner which would make you happier. I do not doubt but what you can get away with your reformation beautifully. Do it all in a light and jovial spirit, far removed from a nagging or critical manner.

Many a girl has found her ideal in a wonderful big, honest, broad-minded man, who was untaught and inexperienced in the little polished mannerisms which go to make everyday life smooth and happy. The wise, tactful girl can do wonders toward smoothing off the rough edges of such a man too, to his improvement as well as to the increase of her joy in him.

A book, magazine subscription, anything in the leather desk and pocket conveniences, a picture for his room, linen handkerchiefs perhaps initialed by the girl all make appropriate gifts for the maid to make to a man.

The girl should never accept expensive or unconventional gifts from a man. Books, a kodak, inexpensive knick-knacks for the house, and the flowers, candy and stationary are the usual gifts. Do not accept jewelry, silk hose or such personal and costly presents.

Her Sister's Disgrace.

Dear Minerva: I have a girl friend just my age, fifteen years. Now I think a great deal of her, but am greatly troubled lately as she has an older sister who has disgraced herself and family. My friend and I have always gone to Sunday school together, but now she won't go any more as some of her other girl friends are talking abut her on account of her sister. She has never spoken to me of the trouble, but I know that is why she won't go any place. Now Minerva do you think the other girls are right by treating her the way they do? I don't. And do you think that I should continue my going with her? Thanking you very much if you think my letter worth printing, I remain one who is trying to be, A TRUE FRIEND.

A. By all means continue your friendship with this girl, and do all in your power to encourage the other girls to treat her in a friendly manner. She is innocent and the misdoings and mistakes of her sister should not cause her to suffer. It is natural that she should feel embarrassed and shrink from others who might say unkind things to her, or treat her coldly. But with such a true friend as you are to stand by her she should face the world unafraid and unabashed. Continue being her friend even though the task of drawing her out be a hard one. You are doing a very kind act.

A Golf Widow.

Dear Minerva: My husband learned to play golf this spring and now he goes out every Sunday morning to play, and several evenings a week he goes out right after work and plays until dark, which makes our dinner very late. Now don't you think a man owes more time than this to his family? I never spent such a lonesome summer in my life. We used to go for Sunday and evening picnics and have such good times together. But now all he wants to do is to play golf. Don't you think this is intemperance when carried to such extremes? NEGLECTED.

A. At least you are in style, for it is quite the usual thing now days for a woman to be a golf widow. Some such seek solace and companionship with other women, likewise, widowed by the popular sport. Others take up golf themselves. Still others go in for swimming or tennis playing to healthfully while away the hours that their husbands devote to golf. No doubt your husband does overdo it a bit in his arden pursuit of the game. But it is a healthful sport after all. Why not learn the game yourself. Then you will better understand the fascination it holds for him, also you can play with him and thus renew the companionship of olden days.

America First.

Dear Minerva: I would like to know what kind of patriotism (American) will allow a good American citizen to hany any other flag above the American flag. Let's give the French her place, but not above the stars and stripes. There are some who are doing this in Lincoln. I think not with intention however. Give us a good one on this. JESS.

A. Your criticism is "a good one" itself, short, crisp, to the point. I think any reader who has unthinkingly given the American flag second place will take the suggestion kindly and shift the flags about.

Questions Answered Briefly.

A Dressmaker: I am sorry, but your letter is of an advertising nature and I cannot give it space in the Mail. Make your wants known through a want ad and you will doubtless get results.

A. R.: Your wants too are of an advertising nature. I would like to help you find your pen, but oh, the dozens of letters of similar requests which would come my way if I started giving such assistance. You must resort to the Lost and Found department in the want ads.

Talks On Use of Better English

One hundred and fifty employes of Gold and company heard Howard Driggs, of New York City, give an address Monday evening in which he made a strong plea for the use of Letter English. He emphasized the dollars and cents value of clean, virile expression in business. The topic of Mr. Driggs' talk was the five "C's", clear, concise, correct, convincing and courteous English.

"Business and personal success follows the consistent use of gracious, careful, cultured tones and speech," said the speaker.

REACTION AGAINST TARIFF MEASURE.

Public sentiment against the tariff measure recently passed by congress and signed by President Harding is flaming higher than even the staunchest opponent of the bill had reason to expect. From all sctions of the country, even in the favored spots, a cry of protest is being heard.

The World's Work, under the heading, "A Profiteer Tariff," contributes the following:

"At present it seems impossible to hope for any sane consideration of American foreign relations from congress. The thing that has chiefly marked the recent session at Washington is the utter poverty of political ideas. Certain conceptions in the direction of progress have come from the administration itself, particularly the conference on limitation of naval armament, but few ideas invigorating the national life and pointing the way to future national usefulness has issued from Capitol Hill. Indeed, the most striking characteristics of the present session is the fact that its face seems to look exclusively to the past. Most of the problems that have engaged its attention belong to the most hackneyed period of republican ascendancy. The world is falling in ruins but congress seems unable to think of anything except the tariff, the bonus and ship subsidies.

"The new tariff is the most striking illustration of the prevalent absence of real political thinking in this country. The listlessness with which the bill finally passed the senate, the opposition which it aroused among the more enlightened republican members tells the story. There was hardly any effort to conceal the real motives that prompted its passage. The purpose of any protective tariff, of course, is to increase prices; that is, it is governmental interference with the processes of trade; it aims to put money into the pockets of the manufacturers, merchants and farmers by stifling competition. But seldom has this policy been pursued so shamelessly as in the latest bill. There is such a thing as the protective theory and although the highest economic thinking in all parts of the world, rejects it as unsound, it at least furnished a basis for discussion. Mr. Taft, in his ill-fated experiment with the tariff, adopted the principle, or attempted to adopt it—of making the duty represent the difference in the cost of production in the United States and its foreign competitors. The theory back of this program was that the public paid the somewhat higher price, represented by the duty; that this increased price went into the pockets of the working man, the net result of the proceeding being to maintain the American industrial plant in full and working efficiency. That had apparently represented the orthodox republican principle up to the present time.

"But the present tariff makers have thrown this principle to the winds. They have placed enormous duties on all kinds of products without the slightest regard to the so-called difference in the cost of production. The purpose is not so much primarily to encourage American industry as it is to add enormously to prices and to give the beneficiaries a chance to 'cash in' during the period of republican ascendancy. In other words the new tariff is simply a profiteer tariff—not a protective tariff. It seems inconceivable that its framers regard it as having any permanence; they know the American people will not endure it long; but the brutal fact is that it will remain on the law books for two or three years and that the profits for that period will be enormous. To accuse a congressional majority of such utter wantonness as this is not a plesant duty, but it is hard to put any other construction upon recent events."

World's Work has stated the case very mildly for the country at large, but in the instance of Nebraska, the condemnation which should greet President Harding and the republican majority in congress could be made more specific.

Take the case of potatoes, a duty being thrown into the bill as a sop to a few potato-raising states. Nebraska potatoes, in spite of the tariff, are being marketed for the lowest price in years and at a price far from compensatory for the dealer. Someone told the tariff framers that Nebraska was vitally interested in a duty on potash. It was included as another bit of sop. Not enough potash is being produced in Nebraska to warrant mention, and at the present price of fuel there is little chance of profitable production.

Hardware, machinery, furniture and clothing, very little of which is manufactured in this state, will reap the great benefits of a profiteer tariff while the farmers of Nebraska and the masses represented by other classes within the state will foot the bill. It has been the rather unpleasant experience of the ftarmers of Nebraska that a tariff law, sponsored by the manufacturing sections of the east, has brought little benefit for the people of Nebraska.

The plain facts are that congress handed the middle west a lemon of unusual size and richness of color. It will take more than a legion of republican spellbinders from the east to convince Nebraskans it is a different kind of fruit.

THE GOVERNOR AND THE BUDGET.

Governor McKelvie is excusing the increase of $17,000,000 in appropriations and $18,000,000 in state taxes during his four years' administration with the plea that a large part of the extra money was spent in departments outside his sphere of control.

Is this true? Is the governor such a cipher in determining what the expenditures of the state government shall be that he cannot do something to hold down the cost of handling the public business?

Wasn't it Governor McKelvie and his code finance secretary who made up the last state budget calling for total appropriations of $26,681,787, of which $18,513,000 was to be raised by direct taxation and the balance derived from fees, cash receipts, and federal funds?

Was there anybody who stood over the governor and his code lieutenant with a club to compel them to incorporate in the budget all the requests for appropriations which had been filed with them?

As a matter of fact, Governor McKelvie's administration is directly responsible for the huge appropriations made by the 1921 legislature. Because these were made in accordance with the budget which he himself submitted to it. Under the constitution, no appropriation can be made for any item not included in the budget, except by three-fifths vote of each branch of the legislature. This provision enables the governor, right at the outset, to use the pruning knife if he sees fit.

Furthermore, the governor has authority to veto any item in an appropriation bill, except one which has been increased over his recommendation by three-fifths vote. If an item is vetoed, it requires a two-thirds vote in each branch to repass it.

In view of these very ample powers vested in himself to protect the state treasury from legislative raids, how can Governor McKelvie claim his administration is blameless for the $18,000,000 increase of state taxes during his regime?

The very purpose of the budget provision in the state constitution was to place responsibility on the governor in the way of supervising departmental estimates and holding down expenditures. Unless the governor does his duty in these matters, the budget system is worthless.

THE OATMEAL COOKIE.

The American Legion auxiliary recently conducted a contest to select the best recipe for cookies for disabled soldiers. Some 400 recipes were submitted to the judges and from the list the judges selected an old-fashioned friend of boyhood days—the oatmeal cookie.

We don't care to be accused of undue partiality for an old friend but we can't restrain the impulse to let out a whoop of exultation over the trumph of a boyhood chum. But to return to the contest, the oatmeal cookie needed no friend in court to score its victory. It was found to be best adapted to convalescent boys because it has a small fat content and at the same time contains much food value in the oats and raisins.

Unfortunately one can't discourse on calories and food values but to sum up the case for the oatmeal cookie, it might be said they satisfy.

Comment by the Press

HIRAM JOHNSON OBSOLETE.

Hiram W. Johnson went into the California primaries boasting that his majority would be 175,000. He came out of the primaries with a majority ample sufficient to renominate him for senator but relatively so small that he is eliminated as a presidential possibility in the republican national convention of 1924.

Johnson's opponent is not far out of the way when he says that "the back of his political machine has been broken."

Johnson's great spectacular achievement in politics came in 1916 when, as an avowed and uncompromising progressive, he was elected to the senate in California by a plurality of 296,515, although President Wilson carried the state against Mr. Hughes by 3,773. That victory gave Johnson enormous prestige, and after Roosevelt's death he was looked on as the strongest leader of the progressive elements in the republican party.

In 1920 he sought the nomination for president as a progressive and showed remarkable popular strength in many of the primaries. The Chicago convention disregarded him, but an important element in the party still believed that he was the most aggressive champion of whatever progressive policies remained.

Johnson's friends insisted that the California primary this year would be a test of 1924, and it was. But the Johnson who was a candidate for renomination was no longer a progressive. He had broken with the progressive republicans of California and had aligned himself with the corporations and reactionaries that he once fought. He had William R. Hearst with him, but Hearst is never very particular about the political company he keeps, and Johnson proved to be no more squeamish than Hearst. While the Fordney-McCumber tariff was making its leisurly progress through the senate Johnson managed to load it down with provisions for monopoly protection to everything that California raises, and this achievement was regarded as a final stroke of political genius. Johnson went home to tell his constituents that California was the best-protected state in the Union, and then waited for his testimonial of popular approval.

Three months ago there was no organized opposition to his renomination. Then weeks ago C. C. Moore, who had never held an office of any kind, decided to run against Johnson in order to give progressive republicans of California a chance to express themselves at the polls. Moore has been beaten, but his vote demonstrates that Johnson has lost the old progressive following in the state which gave him distinction in national politics. He has sunk to the status of a California Lodge without Lodge's scholarship or Lodge's long experience in public affairs.

The public service corporations are powerful in California. The fruit-growers whose private pockets Johnson has so well served are also powerful. So is the old reactionary element with which Johnson once battled and with which he is now allied. Hearst has a large following among the ignorant and the radical. But all these influences combined could not give Johnson a plurality that makes an appeal to the imagination of the country. For Hiram Johnson the California primaries were an anti-climax, and no ambitious political career can survive an anti-climax.

As the country is swinging more and more toward liberalism again, Johnson by some curious perversity of temperament, swung to the side of reaction. Soon or late every demagogue guesses wrong. Johnson guessed nearly enough right to hold his seat in the senate but has missed completely the great prize that he was seeking.

More and more Mr. Harding is coming to believe that he is destined to be a one-term president, but he knows now whatever else happens it will not be Hiram W. Johnson who takes the nomination away from him in 1924.—New York World.

More Truth than Poetry

BY S. E. KISER

A PROFITABLE FUNERAL.

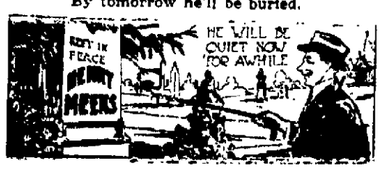

Henry Meeks died yesterday;
What you ask, is that to you?
Other men have passed away,
Death, you say, is nothing new.
I will grant you that, and yet
Henry's case deserves attention;
Linger for a moment; get
All the facts I have to mention.

Henry had a constant dread.
Of disasters he foresaw:
"Troubles coming sure, he said.
"People don't respect the law;
Honesty is out of style,
Decency has been forgotten;
Faith has dwindled; art is vile,
And society is rotten.

"See the women, how they dress,
All their modesty is lost;
Still they stumble, thinking less
Every season of the cost.
Every season of the cost.
Home life lacks the charm it had.
Girls have cast off all restriction;
Things are going to the bad;
Put a pin in this prediction!
"Striking mobs and profiteers
Stir up trouble everywhere;
Nothing's sacred, it appears:
People navigate the air;
God deprived mankind of wings,
And he frowns on aviation;
Anarchy is coming; things
Soon will sink in desolation!

"Gaming, jazzing and divorce,
Lawlessness throughout the land;
We are on a downward course,
And the end is close at hand."
Henry Meeks is dead; there's one
Reason less for being worried;
All his howling has been done;
All his howling has been done;
By tomorrow he'll be buried.

There are many ways to save fuel, as the national bureau of mines suggests, and perhaps the most effective is to go visiting.

When a prominent Englishman unbends and grants an interview, he is usually generous enough to come through with a denial next day.

Some of the love letters written by the old boys indicate that hardening of the arteries is less to be dreaded than softening of the brain.

The Secret of the Aerial Glider

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

Eminent Astronomer and Authority On Subjects of Scientific Interest.

There does not appear to be any mystery about the German experiments in gliding at a high altitude in the air, or in the rising of the glider above the level of the point of departure. On a smaller scale a this was accomplished years ago, before the perfection of the aeroplane.

As an aviator wod must have had experiences which illustrated the principle, for the aeroplane is itself ony a glider with motor attached to supply it continuously with power independent of gravity. Gravity cannot be destroyed, but its effect can be neutralized by an opposing force, such as that furnished by the propeller.

Aided by the propeller the aeroplane rises from the level of the ground by virtue of the upward resultant of the force exerted by the air on its sloping wings. After it has attained a certain elevation if the engine stopped the aeroplane glides downward. This is substantially what it would do if, without engine or propeller, it could be launched from a high elevation, and be prevented from turning and remaining, edgewise toward the ground.

The simple glider cannot start from the ground, i. e. from a level plane, but must be launched from an elevation, the elevation gives it potential energy. The moment it is launched gravity becomes its motive power, and following the direction of least resistance, the glider moves off on a downward slope until it has attained a speed sufficient to place it nearly in equilibrium, after which it moves on horizontally, riding upon the air without falling, somewhat as a skater in swift movement skims across a thin piece of ice without breaking through.

The novelty in the German experiments consists in the bold acceptance of the primary condition for a long glide, viz. that the take-off must be from a very elevated point and not from a mere hillock. Then, the surrounding topography no doubt has much to do with the great success attained. The complexity and power of the air currents prevailing in hilly and mountainous regions is almost bewond belief. You have only to stand on a lofty cliff and launch a piece of card-board over the abyss in order to have a practical demonstration of the possibilities of gliding upon, or in the air.

The card-board would continue to plunge straight downward only if it could be kept with its flat sides vertical. But even if it is started that way, there are many influences tending to turn it and when once its flat side is presented toward the earth, its fall is arrested and then, like the glider, it shoots off horizontally, or nearly so, sometimes rising, at other times descending, in accordance with the air currents that affect it.

The art of soaring is instinctive with high-flying birds. Birds whose life is passed close to the ground do not practice gliding, or soaring. Either a rapid horizontal propulsion, or a lofty take off, is essential to gliding and soaring. Yet even the eagle on starting from his mountain crag, at first uses his wings to get up a stronger forward motio before soaring.

Possibly the most instructive birds to study are sea-gulls, which often sail in close proximity to a ship. Without any apparent addition to their propulsive force, they will suddenly turn steeply upward, rising with astonishing velocity, but the ability to do this depends upon the speed with which they are already moving horizontally. They cast their wings in such a way that an upward resultant arises from their forward motion. Or turning directly into the face of a current, with their wings properly placed, they are forced up by the moving air. Thus they exchange kinetic or potential energy.

When the propelling force is derived solely from gravity, as is the case of a simple gliding machine, having no propeller, and little, or no, accumulated force from a preliminary run on the ground, the machine cannot rise above the level of its starting point unless force, independent of gravity, is given to it in the course of its flight.

Such force may come from upward air currents. If, when the machine is gliding swiftly along, almost in equilibrum, the surrounding air rises, the glider will be born up with it. In a hilly country with a dish or cupshaped central depression, such air movements are common, and they would serve to account for the reported rising of the German gliders to an elevation a thousand feet above the starting point. But such conditions depend upon local topography. I have no doubt, however, that gliding in suitable environments will become a useful means of aerial locomotion no less than an inspiring sport.

HONORING FARMERS.

Nebraska ranks high as a live stock and agricultural state, and its farming element is more closely knit together, perhaps, than any agricultural element in any central western state. Farmers pretty nearly dictate the affairs of state in Nebraska, and if there is any fairness in the majority rule then Nebraska can boast that it has majority rule, as a rule.

In recent years Nebraska has elected two very prominent farmers, cattle feeders and cattle breeders to the governor's chair, and now Nebraska farmers have turned around and nominated those two farmers for congress. Evidently party lines were laid down in the campaign that are being waged to send these two present day farmers to congress to represent strictly agricultural congressional districts.

The Telegram knows nothing of the politics of J. H. Morehead of Falls City and A. C. Shallenbarger of Alma. They may be running on a mugwump ticket for congress so far as this paper is concerned and it is not concerned as to the outcome of the election, other than to observe the course of agricultural representation in the halls of congress by two farmers, both of whom have served a great agricultural state.

Their politics is not involved and is not being discussed herein. But it is a notable achievement on the part of people in an agricultural state when they can go to their own ranks and select men that are big enough for any service that the people of the state or congressional district may desire. The instances of J. H. Morehead and A. C. Shallenbarger having been called from the farm by farmers to be governors, and then being called from their farms as congressional candidates reflects as much credit on agriculture in Nebraska as it does on the two men involved.

These two Cincinnatuses called, as it were from the plow, to the role of statesmen goes to prove conclusively that farmers have in their own ranks men who are big enough for the job of giving farmers real representation in positions of state. It reflects great credit on the intelligence of the farmers and their desire for co-ordination that they can agree on two of their own numbers to bear the standard of agricultural congressional districts in the halls of congress usually infested with lawyers, and the swashbuckling politicians.

We have no majority representation in congress at this time, else the majority of congressmen and senators would be farmers. Perhaps Nebraska has set a pace that other agricultural states will follow. It is certain that the cities of the country are not going to select farmers for congress and United States senate if the matter is left to them. The only way for farmers to get national representation is to select high class, intelligent farmers, and there are lots of them, and regardless of party lines, too, and nominate and elect them to congress.—Kansas City Drovers Telegram.

KING GEORGE IS HELD PRISONER

New Greek Ruler's Palace is Virtually Same As Jail, Reports Say.

(International News Service)

LONDON, Oct. 3—The Greek revolutionary committee at Athens is keeping King George a virtual prisoner in the palace, it was reported from Belgrade today.

Advices direct from Athens said that recognition of the new Greek revolutionary regime by Great Britain and Belgium is expected as the result of a visit paid to King George by the British minister to Greece, F. O. Lindley.

M. Zaimis has renounced the post of premier in the Greek provisional government, owing to ill health. An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Athens says that Minister of Home Affairs, Krokidas, probably will succeed M. Zaimis.

A section of the British press led by the Daily Express is bitterly attacking former Premier Venizelos, charging that he is trying to induce the British to insist upon retention of Thrace by Greek troops until the Near East peace conference is concluded, "thus hoping to provide war between Turkey and England."

The Daily Express asserts that "Greece then would attempt to regain the territory she has lost behind the British screen."

Downing street officials resent these press attacks. A formal statement was issued saying that Venizelos is the friend of the allies and that the allies hope his influence will aid in settling the Thracian problem.

Venizelos conferred with Lord Curzon, British foreign secretary, and planned to leave onight for Paris to see Premier Poincare, but suddenly postponed his trip indefinitely without explanation.

Two Kaysee Banks to Merge Through Purchase of Stock

KANSAS CITY, Mo. Oct. 3.—What was said to be the largest banking transaction in the history of the southwest was consummated today when officers of Theodore Gary and company contracted to purchase the stock in the Commerce Trust company—the largest bank between Chicago and San Francisco.

Walter H. McLucas, now a vice-president of the National City bank of New York, will become the new president of the bank if he desires to accept the post, it was understood. McLucas was formerly president of the Commerce Trust company here.

The stock which the Gary interests contracted to purchase was held by William T. Kemper, chairman of the board, and J. W. Perry, president. The deal will mean the transfer of approximately 10,000 shares of stock at an estimated value of $2,250,000.

LOOT DRUG STORE.

(Special to The Star.)

BEATRICE, Neb., Oct. 3—Thieves entered the drug store of U. McClaran in West Beatrice last night secured a small amount of money and carried away some cigars, cigarets and tobacco. The gained entrance by chiseling off the lock on the front door. Bloodhounds followed the trail to the river bank where it is believed the robbers escaped in a boat.

Mexican Papers Allege America Is Against Obregon

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 3.—Mexican newspapers this morning published stories under the sensational headline:

"United States Government Trying to Encourage Revolution in Mexico."

According to the newspapers in question a secret bulletin dealing with Mexican affairs has been issued by M. Elting Hana, chief of the Mexican division of the United States state department, which, the newspapers say, shows partiality to the enemies of the Obregon government.

The papers claim furthermore that there is reason to believe that Francisco Murgia, Mexican rebel leader, who is said to be in Texas at present, communicated secretly to Secretary of the Interior Fall plans for the overthrow of the Obregon government.

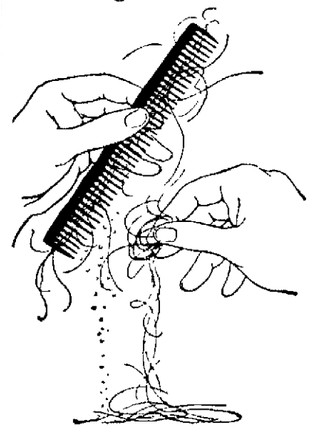

The secret state department bulletin, the papers declare, say that Obregon would be unable to cope with an uprising led by Murguia.

Aviator Is Hurt Due to Landing Gear Being Off

MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich., Oct. 3.—Captain Bert E. Skeel of the Twenty-fourth squadron of the army aero first pursuit group, was recovering today from injuries sustained yesterday when he landed without a landing gear on Selfridge field in an airplane he had driven in a test flight preparatory to the Pulitzer air race October 14. As he rose for his trial spin the wheels of his landing gear fell from the machine. Unaware of the accident, although other flyers made frantic efforts to warn him of his danger Captain Skeel circled over St. Clair for half an hour, then turned to the field and crashed in landing.

A SIN TO LET HAIR FALL OUT

35c "Danderine" Saves Your Hair—Ends Dandruff! Delightful Tonic

Hurry! It's your duty! Each day you see a little more hair falling out and you are making no effort to avoid baldness. What a pity. Falling hair means your hair is weak, sick—possibly dandruff is strangling it, or the hair root pores in the scalp are not firm and tight, thus wasting the hair-growing oils.

Danderine almost instantly stops falling hair of men or women and cleans every particle of dandruff away, then the hair takes on new life, vigor and strength to grow strong, thick, and long.

Danderine is delightful—not sticky or greasy. Go to any drugstore now and get a bottle. Use it. Have healthy, heavy, beautiful hair and lots of it.—Advertisement.

CASH FOR SURVEY IS BEING RAISED

Volunteers Are to Contribute Funds For Water Project.

(Special to The Star.)

HASTINGS, Neb., Oct. 3.—Five hundred persons in Adams county are asked to contribute $5 each to make up a fund of $2,500—Adams county's share in the total expense of making a survey of several counties in Central Nebraska in connection with the supplemental water project.

A bill authorizing the survey and appropriating money to defray the expense was introduced in congress and passed by both houses, though it was amended by elimnating the appropriation. As no funds of the interior department are available, the expense will have to be borne by the several counties backing the supplemental water movement. Government surveyors will do the work. If the money can be raised at once, it is hoped to have the survey begun in November.

Supplemental water is winning new converts every day. A. C. Hull of Hastings, the second man to contribute to the fund in Adams county, sent a letter to the committee saying that while he has no land in Adams county he owns a farm near Gothenburg on which, due to the storing of water in the said in the spring and fall, he harvested thirty bushels of wheat per acre while on adjacent land without such water having been applied only seven bushels was harvested.

Our citizenship depends upon the traning and educaton and on one's philosophy or viewpoint in life, she said. Miss Pyrtle quoted from Mrs. H. H. Wheeler: 'Children are the human promises of tomorrow: therefore the chief concern of our and of each generation."

Miss Pyrtle was entertained by the educational committee of the club at a noon luncheon at Burgess-Nash tea rom, Mrs. F. H. Cole, chairman.

The plans are to accommodate one thousand pupils. While attorneys raise the question if this can be legally done it is believed authorization by voters for the change will remove all invalidation of the bonds already outstanding and sold.

TO BUILD GARAGE.

HASTINGS, Neb., Oct. 3.—Albert E Stitt bought at sheriff's sale today five lots at Third street and St. Joseph avenue for $8,810. He will use the property as a site for a modern garage. A temporary building will be erected on one of the lots at once.

Saline Educators Urge Don Leech For Committeeman

(Special to The Star.)

WESTERN, Neb., Oct. 3.—At the invitation of G. W. Hildreth, city superintendent of schools of Western, the city superintendents and county superintendent of Saline county met in session in the high school building of Western and perfected their organization for the coming year by electing Don R. Leech of Friend, president; G. W. Hildreth of Western, vice-president; L. J. Bouchal of Wilber, secretary-treasurer, and C. H. Velte of Crete, director of school activities.

Various educational topics were discussed and much valuable information obtained. DOANE PLANS FOR ENDOWMENT DRIVE

Finance Secretary Studied Methods Used By Eastern Colleges.

(Special to The Star.)

CRETE, Oct. 3.—A. H. Bissell, finance secretary of Doane college, arrived in Crete Monday noon from the east, where he has spent a month in organizing the Doane alumni in that district for the $300,000 endowment campaign next spring, and in studying the methods used by the eastern colleges in recent large endowment drives.

A meeting of the New York city alumni which Mr. Bissell attended last Friday in New York had consequences of the highest importance to Doanie. The alumni committee there passed resolutions endorsing the plans of the college for endowment and development, and pledging their heartiest support not only to those but to the raising of a Fairchild professorship of political and social science, amounting to at least $75,000, to be raised apart from the $300,000 fund. The resolution recognized an especial obligation on the part of the eastern alumni in the raising of this professorship, since Prof. A. B. Fairchild of Crete has contributed so much to the field of social science and a number of his students are specialists in the subject in the east.

Mr. Bissell visited Yale, Harvard, Amherst, Smith and Mount Holyoke colleges for the purpose of studying the methods used in their recent endowment campaigns which in the aggregate raised between thirty and forty million dollars.

ERECT MONUMENT FOR OLD SOLDIERS

Imposing Granite Shaft to Be Set Up at Hastings.

(Special to The Star.)

HASTINGS, Neb., Oct. 3.—With impressive ceremony, Silas A. Strickland post early yesterday turned the sod for an imposing monument, which it will erect to the soldiers of '61.

Just as the sun broke through the heavy mist that had hung low over Hastings, W. Dungan, one of the the four surviving charter members of the post, laid aside his cane and standing proudly erect with uncovered head, gave the signal that started the crew of workmen preparing the base for the shaft of granite.

The old soldiers have raised the funds for their monument by selling the G. A. R. building, which it realizes it will not need many years more. The post roster contains the names of 389 veterans but only sixty-one of them are now living.

It is expected that the monument will be ready for unveiling some time in November. It will cost about $10,000 and will stand thirty-five feet high, surmounted by a life size figure of a soldier in civil war unform, standing at attention.

Oats for women who are rushed

Your grocer now has Instant Quaker Oats, the quickest cooking oats in the world. It cooks to perfection in 3 to 5 minutes.

The same extra quality as in regular Quaker Oats. Both are flaked from queen grains only—just the rich, plump, flavory oats. Both have that matchless flavor which makes Quaker Oats supreme.

But in Instant Quaker the oats are cut before flaking. They are rolled very thin and partly cooked. So the flakes are smaller and thinner—that is all. And the small thin flakes cook quickly.

Get the style you want. The Instant Quaker is marked "Instant" on the label.

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

Nobody Can Tell When You Darken Gray, Faded Hair With Sage Tea.

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggst says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and beautiful.—Advertisement.

Why This Massive Cushion Gives Longer Life

Did you ever stop to think how much action goes on inside a solid tire under the stress of load and speed?

When we selected the right truck tires to offer you we knew that in designing the Firestone Heavy Duty Cushion Tire, Firestone engineers allowed for this "play" and "flow" of rubber.

They built a tire in which the free, easy rubber action is assisted and heat carefully radiated. And the result is a tire of greater traction, better cushion and longer mileage.

The traction groove at the center has powerful ground-gripping shoulders and frequent radiation pockets.

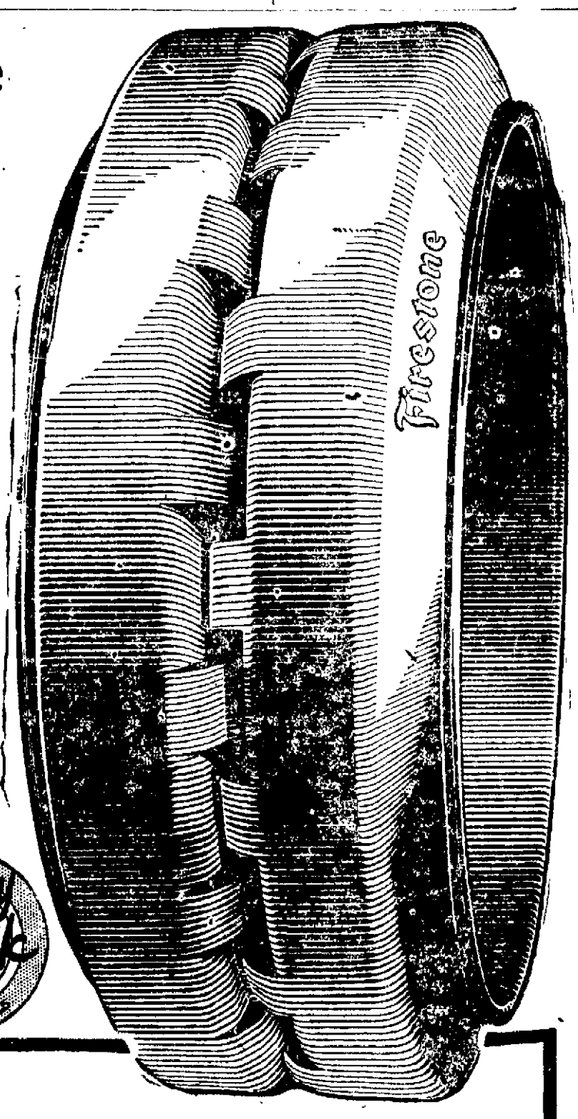

After thousands of miles of service it will still be lively and resilient because constant heating has not hardened the mass of rubber. It will show less wear because it is tough and resilient.

We sell Firestone Tires because Firestone has consistently been a pioneer and leader in this field and results tell.

We would like to show you the full line of Truck tires and give you benefits of our specialized knowledge.

ANIMALS AT FAIR GO UPON A SPREE

Thrills Provided By Trick Goat and Horses at Fair.

(Special to The Star.)

GRAND ISLAND, Neb., Oct. 3.—Why "Percy," trick goat under the management of a woman going under the name of Anna D. E. Koven, performed "strange antics"—stranger than booked—at the recent county fair; and why in one of the final horse races two of the animals went on another than a speed tear, has recently come to light.

All on the same afternoon "Percy" did some whirling and spinning front of the grandstand, on a specially devised platform for entertainment acts, which Anna diagnosed as "acute indigestion." Indeed his goatship had become so erratic that the act was concluded before its time. After that "Percy" went into a stupor. The presumption is, moreover, that when he recovered from the stupor he called for icewater and a cold towel. All on the same afternoon one of the horses became so unmanageable as to throw the rider and madly cavort around the tracks without guidance while other entries were still going the rounds. Then another seemed to have taken a fit. A local authority with every opportunity of being on the inside now declares unequivocally that it was simply a case of "hootch." Some trickster, reckless and unconcerned either as to how old was Ann or how tender her feelings for "Percy" entertained him from a bottle just before his act and that two jockeys, each without the knowledge of the other, and with the prize money as the objective, had doped the other's steed. But it put a lot of thrills into the county fair program.

TORNADO VICTIMS REPAY ADVANCES

Money Raised to Restore Omaha Homes Back to Loaners.

OMAHA, Oct. 3.—Contributors to the Omaha restoration fund raised following the tornado of 1913, have had 95 3-4 per cent of their money returned to them, according to a report just made out by John C. Wharton, treasurer, to Chairman John L. Kennedy, of the committee.

This fund, it will be remembered, was entirely aside from the relief fund to which Omaha and Nebraska people so generously responded. The restoration fund was raised to aid in rebuilding destroyed homes. More than $50,000 was loaned on mortgages without interest. The latter fund was raised very promptly and oversubscribed many times, by Omaha people, railroads entering Omaha and others outside. Most of the contributors regarded the subscription as a gift, and the almost 100 per cent return considered most creditable to Omaha and to the treasurer and committee.

TRAINED NURSES GO UPON STRIKE

Force Walks Out of Douglas County Hospital.

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 3—The trained nurse staff at the Douglas county hospital "walked out" Saturday. They went with their chief nurse, Miss Grace V. Bradley, who quit after a "rumpus" with the hospital superintendent, Dan Westergaard.

The nurses who quit are Elizabeth Winchell, Lucy Neal, Othelia Krekelberg and Mary Hausman. When they left there remained only eight practical nurses.

"We've hired others to take their places and everything is running smoothly again," said Superintendent Westergaard Monday. Miss Mary O'Neill is acting superintendent of nurses, he said.

"It simply was a question of who's who," said Westergaard. He charged that Miss Bradley was "insurgent" and did not want to obey his instructions. "I'm under the county commissioners and it's up to me to run the hospital," he said.

Westergaard said that several members of the medical and surgical staff had threatened also to quit.

The superintendent denied there had been a "walkout" of all employes.

There are approximately 120 patients in the hospital.

Dies After Half Century of Life In This County

CRETE, Neb., Oct. 3.—Mrs. Herman Holman, known as "Grandma," passed away at her home in Kramer Saturday, after having been a invalid for seven years, a great part of that time being spent in a chair, unable to feed herself.

Mrs. Holman, with her husband and parents, emigrated to what is now the town of Kramer in 1865, locating their homesteads on the site of that town. To them were born eleven children, all of whom are living except one son, Frederick, who passed away two years ago. The Holmans knew all of the privations and limitations of pioneer life, their first home being a log cabin.

Twelve years ago Mr. and Mrs. Holman celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary and one year later the husband died. Shortly thereafter the health of Mrs. Holman failed until she was finally stricken with palsy. Funeral services will be held at her late home, conducted by an old friend who was once a pastor in Kramer and who will be assisted by Rev. W. H. Shoaf, pastor of the Methodist church at Crete.

HUNTS NEEDLE IN HAYSTACK

Naval Rum Hound Fires Ten Shots at Speed Boat —Escapes.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Dry navy ships last night scurried along the waterfront, touching at docks and piers and searching indentures along the coast nearby for a two-funnelled steamship, name unknown, which eluded early Monday the former submarine chaser Newberry, now of the prohibition fleet. Ten shots from the one pounder gun on the Newberry had failed to cut off the escape of the fast steamer, supposedly loaded with liquor.

Out in the narrows, Captain Thomas Evarts of the Newberry, reports the watch caught sight of a two-tunnelled steamer making for port.

The dry ship signalled that her men were coming aboard to inspect the cargo. As the Newberry came alongside a clanging of bells started in the engine room of the steamer and she made off, picking up speed with every turn of the propellor.

To frighten the fugitive steamer, Captain Evarts ordered a shot from the one-pounder on the deck. The boom of the gun to the ship pursued was like the starter's pistol in a race. In a minute or two she was running at full speed.

Firing in earnest began on the Newberry, ten shots in all being sent after the mystery ship. Both boats got through the Narrows and once within the harbor, the fugitive craft scudded to safety in the tangle of outlying ships.

Not a trace of the vessel was brought to light by the along-shore hunt of the dry ship.

B. Stephenson a new defendant, thus increasing the number of defendants to eighty-three.

The bonds, which the defendants signed as principals, amount to $925,000. The damages alleged in the amended petition to have been sustained by the hotel company were $500,000 for destruction of the company as a going concern, $375,000 for rental losses, $30,000 for losses of livestock and equipment on the Kearney ranch, $75,000 for personal property and money losses, $50,000 for wear and tear of the properties, $50,000 attorney fees in dissolving and setting aside the former receivership, $100,000 attorneys fees and court costs necessary to be expended for the recovery of the properties.

No Sword Rattling By United States

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Not only will the United States refuse to be stampeded into a war in Asia Minor at the behest of organized church interests, but it is also determined that there would be no sword rattling by the America ngovernment that might be used to the diplomatic advantage of some European nation most concerned in the Turco-Greecian differences, it was asserted today by the authorized spokesmen of the government.

NO AUTHORITY TO MAKE WAR

Hughes Says U. S. Has Gone Limit In Connection With Near East Situation

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Secretary Hughes declared last night in a cable message to Dr. James Cannon, jr., bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, who is in Paris, the American government in reference to the near eastern situation, "has not failed in any way to make the sentiment of the American people understood and to take every appropriate action."

The message was in reply to one from Bishop Cannon under date of September 30, in which he declared his personal belief that "Christian America will insist the government of the United States co-operate and actively protect christians in Asia Minor, not only diplomatically, but if necessary with army and navy to secure their result."

"Prompt definite American demands," Bishop Cannon continued, "supported if necessary by American naval units present would probably have prevented, certainly greatly minimized Smyra fires and massacres. I believe Almighty God will hold government responsible for inaction while thousands were murdered and deported and for failure of protests against defiant, heartless brutal Kemalist announcement that all refuges not movde by today (Saturday) be deported, which deportation means thousands more added to dead of previous Turkish deportations. Will not our government realize its opportunity and responsibility—as a great Christian nation politically disinterested, to demand that burnings, outrages, massacres cease and thus effectively prevent probable repetition in Constantinople and Thrace of 1915, Samsoun and Smyrna horrors. I believe world wide humanity would tremendously approve. Who would dare condemn prohibition further such horrors. Shall America have condemnation of meros. Judge 5:23.

In his reply Secretary Hughes said:

"Your telegram of September 20 reached me this morning. In the present situation, which has resulted from the clash of arms, the defeat of the Greek forces, the incidents of the retreat and the reprisals affected, not only have we done all that is possible for relief and in aid of the refuges but we have exerted in all appropriate manner our influence against all acts of cruelty and oppression.

"On September 8, before the burning of Smyrna, the American high commissioner at Constantinople voiced this country's feeling in earnestly impressing upon the Turkish nationalist authorities the importance of taking the most energetic steps to insure the population of the occupied territory against reprisal. Instructions have been sent to continue and urge these representations and to emphasize the importance of immediate peaceful settlement in the interest of humanity. I have stated this government's unequivocal to approval of the allied proposals to insure effectively the protection of the Christian minority and freedom of the straits. American officials have intervened to secure the prolongation of the time limit for the evacuation of the refugees from Smyrna and thousands have been evacuated as the result of American initiative.

"You will also recall that in June last, we agreed to join in an inquiry which we hoped would place responsibility and prevent the recurrence of atrocities.

"Keenly alive to every humanitarian interest involved, this government has not failed in any way to make the sentiment of the American people understood and to take every appropriate action. It is hardly necessary to add that we have taken proper measures for the protection of American interests.

"As you are probably aware, the executive has no authority to go beyond this and there has been no action by congress which would justify this government in an attempt by armed forces to pacify the Near East or to engage in acts of war in order to accomplish the results you desire with respect to the inhabitants of that territory and to determine the problems which have vexed Europe for generations."

Public Now Prefers Vegetable Laxatives

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin affords prompt relief in a natural way

THE public is constantly becoming more discriminating in its choice of things. Those subject to constipation try to learn what makes them constipated, and then avoid it. If constipation persists in spite of all their efforts they take the mildest, most easily tolerated laxative obtainable, and not a drastic physic that upsets them for days afterwards. As over 10 million bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are sold a year, a large proportion of the people of this country must believe that this mild vegetable compound is the proper remedy for them, and so it is. No need to take salt waters and powders that dry up the blood; coal-tar drugs in candy form that produce skin eruptions, or calomel that salivates. These drugs are "heroic measures", over-effective, weakening and griping.

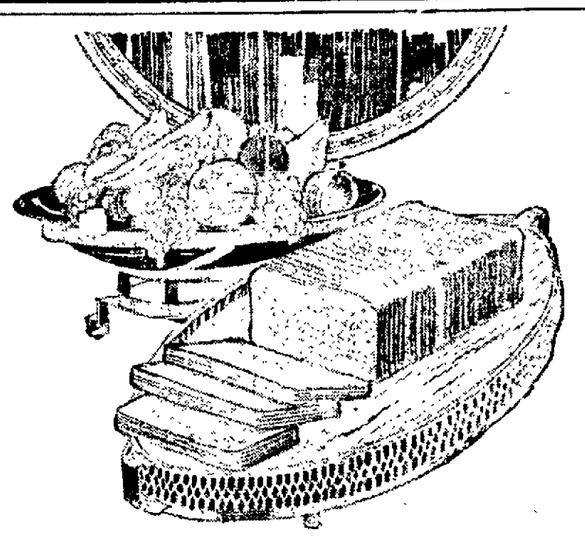

The best constipation remedy is the one that moves the bowels without shock to your system, and such a one is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is a vegetable compound of Egyptian senna and pepsin with pleasant-tasting aromatics, and has been satisfactorily sold for 30 years. Unlike the harsher physics it does not produce a habit, and increased doses are not required; in fact, it so trains the stomach muscles that in time medicines of all kinds can be dispensed with.

Many take a teaspoonful of Syrup Pepsin once a week as a health safeguard. Others use it only when required, as, for example, Mrs. J. W. Borroughs of Little Rock, Ark., who finds it equally valuable for herself and the children, and Mr. Enas S. Costa of Watsonville, Cal., whose family uses it regularly. Try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin in constipation, biliousness, piles, headaches, sallow complexion, and to break up fevers and colds. A generous-size bottle can be had at any drug store, and it costs only about a cent a dose!

ANY FAMILY MAY TRY IT FREE

Thousands of parents are asking themselves, "Where can I find a trustworthy laxative that anyone in the family can use when constipated?" I urge you to try Syrup Pepsin. I will gladly provide a liberal free sample bottle, sufficient for an adequate test. Write me where to send it. Address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 515 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois. Do it now!

The Bread Your Forefathers Ate

Our grandmothers and grandfathers thrived on bread made from real whole wheat flour—and what healthy, rugged folk they were! They continued active beyond their years.

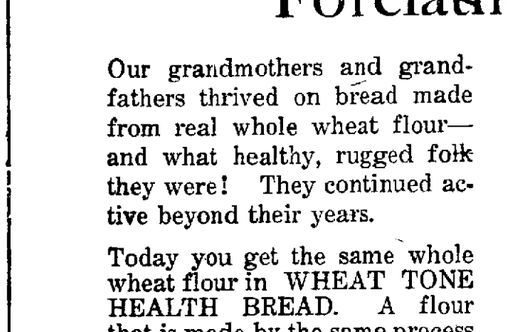

Today you get the same whole wheat flour in WHEAT TONE HEALTH BREAD. A flour that is made by the same process as was used in the old stone mill. It contains ALL of the wheat.

ALL of the wheat means the Germ and the coarse Bran. These aren't found today in commercial flours. Modern millers remove the Germ because it deteriorates so rapidly that flours containing it cannot be shipped or stored. The Bran is removed because it discolors and coarsens the flour.

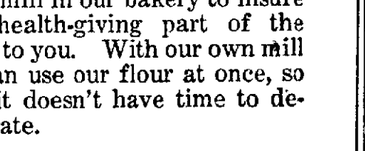

But we have installed a complete flour mill in our bakery to insure this health-giving part of the grain to you. With our own mill we can use our flour at once, so that it doesn't have time to deteriorate.

WHEAT TONE is a conditioner and a preventive rather than a remedy. It should be added to your diet NOW, rather than when energy lags and the nerve forces are expended. The fats, salts and vitamins that the WHEAT GERM supplies will benefit all ages.

NEW GOVERNMENT AT ATHENS STERN, POWERFUL GROUP

Daily Evidence of Martial Law Seen In Patrols Marching Streets.

Venizelists Remain Outside Until Put Into Power at National Election.

(Associated Press.)

ATHENS, Oct. 3.—The revolutionary committee still continues all-powerful and there are daily evidence of stern martial laws strong patrols, slowly marching through the streets.

M. Politis has telegraphed from Paris refusing the portfolio of foreign minister but consenting to help the government abroad.

M. Diomedes, another prominent Venizelist, however, has accepted the ministry of finance.

General indications are that the Venizelists are waiting to see how the internal situation develops preferring to remain outside the government until the Venizelist party is definitely summoned to power at the national elections.

The British, Italian and Belgian diplomatic representatives have signed the visitors' book at the royal palace and the Greeks interpret this as the forerunner of actual recognition of George II.

The entente countries and America did not recognize King Constantine. The United States has taken no local action diplomatically since the revolution.

The Athenian newspapers condemn the reported utterances of the French press that the recent revolution was merely staged to impress the powers. They are especially aroused over the reported statement that proof of the sham character of the revolution can be found in the fact that neither Constantine nor the former premiers have been punished.

Powers Save Ministers.

The Greek press declares the former ministers were only spared summary punishment by the humanitarian intervention of the French and British ministers and other diplomatic representatives here. It is also reiterated that Constantine was dethroned because the people objected to his principles.

A recently posted announcement at the central telegraph station informs the foreign press correspondents that the censorship of their telegrams will henceforth operate at the press bureau of the foreign office.

The turn of the political wheel has brought a Greek who is well known in America and whose mother is an American, into the important position of director of the press bureau and chief censor. He is F. Demetrius Kalopothakis whose mother is a native of Massachusetts and who himself was graduated from Harvard.

The former premiers now under arrest are being removed to an island near Piraeus where they will be released on parole under military supervision. Colonel Gonatas of the executive committee has promised that they will be adequately protected until their trial before special courts to be constituted by the next national assembly.

It is announced that general elections to constitute a new parliament to succeed that deposed by the revolution will be held November 14.

Hoover After Men For a Commission In Coal Industry

(Associated Press.)

CLEVELAND, Oct. 3.—A telegram from Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce, and Jmes L. Davis, secretary of labor, requesting submission of a panel of twenty names of persons dissociated with coal mining for use in the creation of a fact-finding commission of the coal industry, provided under the Borah-Winslow bill was in the hands of T. K. Maher of Cleveland, temporary chairman at the second joint session in the bituminous miners-operators conference here today.

The request for the naming of such a panel was rejected by the operators at a caucus yesterday the operators explaining their action by saying they believed they were required under the Cleveland agreement which practically settled the sort coal strike last August to appoint a committee of men connected with the coal mining industry and that compliance with the request of the federal government would abrogate the Cleveland agreement.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, in a statement, declared that "the miners were standing pat on the Cleveland agreement and all of the provisions" which includes the appointment of an investigating commission.

Negro Is Killed During Race Riot In Alabama Town

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Oct. 3.—Montgomery is under guard of three companies of Alabama national guard one negro is dead from a gunshot wound, a white man is wounded by a bullet and dozens of negroes are suffering today from injuries received at the hands of a mob which late last night attempted to storm the county jail here and take possession of Joe Terrell, a negro charged with having slain George Wilson, and Joe Partin, game wardens.

In the fighting between officers and members of the mob the fire department was called upon and attempted to disperse the crowd by turning the water on it.

Conscience Hurts; Two Years In Pen

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—"This," said young Bessie Wallack today to District Attorney Banton, "is the day of atonement. I am a bigamist, put me in jail."

"Where is the proof?" requested a detective assigned to question her.

She produced two marriage certificates.

The first showed she was married in September 1921, to David Siegel. She did not like the way he treated her, she said. Then she showed a certificate of her marriage last month to Antonio Versety.

Her request was granted. They put her in jail for two years.

GIRL GOADING POLICE TO ACT

Officers Hot Under Collar When Miss Mills Goes to Governor.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 3.—Charlotte Mills, 16-year-old daughter of Mrs. Eleanor Mills, choir leader, whose body was found beside that of the Rev. Edward W. Hall in a field on September 16, was again brought into the investigation of the double murder Monday.

The girl's first active participation in the case occurred last week when she appealed to Governor Edwards for aid, with the result that the governor requested detectives of the state police to co-operate with the local authorities. Monday Miss Mills was taken by a detective from her class in high school to the office of Prosecutor Beekman where she remained for two hours.

Commenting upon her visit to the prosecutor, she said:

"They wanted to know what right I had to go to Governor Edwards and ask him to help me get justice. I told them that I had every right and I believed they were not doing anything to find the person or persons who killed my mother. I told them this was reason enough.

"From the questions they asked I am convinced they are not getting anywhere. I am heartily sick and tired of answering a lot of questions, when they might better employ their time in finding the murderer. If no one else is interested, at least I am."

The girl also said that up to date no member of the church congregation has called on her to express sympathy with her in the loss of her mother.

While Miss Mills was voicing these criticisms, the work of investigation was progressing here as well as in New York and Philadelphia.

Sidney Carpender, a first cousin of Mrs. Hall, appeared at the court house here today, but was told he had been called by mistake. At the time it was said a drawer containing letters had disappeared from a bureau in the Hall home and that the prosecutor was trying to learn what had become of it.

Handwriting Expert In Case Against an Alleged Murderer

MINEOLA, N. Y., Oct. 3.—A handwriting expert, called by counsel for William M. Creasy of Fort Thomas, Ko., now on trial for the murder of his former sweetheart, Miss Edith Lavoy, Monday testified that one of the numerous letters alleged to have been written by the girl was a forgery.

"Can love be forced?" the letter asked. "Would you want a wife who would not love you?"

Loren C. Horton of New York, the handwriting expert, explained in detail dissimilarities between the writing in this letter and that in other letters known to have been written by Mass Lavoy. He was not cross examined by District Attorney Weeks.

Creasy contends that Miss Lavoy shot herself as he lay by her side on a couch in her Freeport home, because he had put off his marriage to her. The prosecution charges that it was Miss Lavoy who became disenchanted and ended the romance, drawing a letter from Creasy in which he wrote. "I have no more heart in my body. By Sunday I shall be under six feet of earth in eKntucky."

Chinese Woman Skipper of Ship Sailing Pacific

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct 3.—Completing a 165 day cruise along the Aleutian islands during which it reached Attu, the most westerly point of the western hemisphere the coast guard cutter Algonquin arrived here today.

Lieut. William T. Stromberg, commander of the Algonquin, reported an eventful voyage which included discovery of a "moving island" the location of a new harbor, a battle with a 100 foot whale and a meeting with a Chinese junk, commanded by a woman ,headed for Coney Island, N. Y., for exhibition purposes.

The moving island is known as Bogoslof, in the Aleutian chain. Lieut. Stromberg has visited it on five different occasions and each time has found it in a new location. The new harbor on Chugal island, shown on no charts was found by Lieut. J. E. Whitebeck of the cutter's crew. The Chinese junk was met at Atka. George Waard, the master was born in Newfoundland but claims no country and flies no flag on his strange vessel. Going out of Atka, Waard's Chinese wife took command of the vessel.

Iowa Candidate Denies Socialist

CLINTON, Ia., Oct 3.—Smith W. Brookhart, republican candidate for United States senator in an address here last night, opened an energetic attack upon the leaders of the movement against him in his own ranks, repudiated socialistic support and announced if elected he would be found fighting three hundred and sixty-five days a year for the party of Lincoln, Roosevelt and Kenyon."

Colonel Brookhart charged that the meeting of republicans called in Des Moines for today for the purpose of bolting the party, is being lead by representatives of the Iowa public utility interests, who, he says, have formed an alliance with the democratic organization in Iowa.

Aged Pair Who Dupe Wealthy Go On Hunger Strike

POMEROY, O., Oct. 3.—Mrs. Susan Kraus, 63, and her husband, 68, held in county all on a charge of embezzlement and alleged by county officials to have mulcted Pomeroy people out of more than $300,000 by promises of returns rivalling those promised by Ponzi, the Boston financier, today began the fourth day of their self-imposed fast.

"If they would only let her out of here," the husband said today, 'she would tell them all."

Meanwhile the grand jury was to convene today and begin a rigid investigation of the financial transactions of the couple covering the past twelve years. Scores of citizens were ready to go before the in- ury ised returns from 10 to 30 per cent for their money they had entrusted large sums to the woman, and that in many cases the interest had been paid in advance.

Meanwhile, the United States has under way proceedings in bankruptcy designed to show what assets if any were left to meet the rapidly mounting claims. It was expected a commissioner would be appointed to prove the claims and that an examination of the woman would be ordered.

Feel Lewis Was Best General In Recent Walkout

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 3.—Coal operators from all parts of the bituminous fields of the United States here to confer with the policy committee of the United States here to confer with the policy committee of the United Mine Workers upon the method of making a new scale to be effective when the Cleveland agreement expires next April were apparently divided into widely differing camps as the second day's joint session began today.

One faction of the operators feeling they were outmaneuvered by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, in the recent strike, advocate the formation of a national organization of bituminous operators, asserting that only in suih a manner can they cope with the growing strength of the union. It was considered doubtful whether the conference would be able today to name the joint committee which is to work out plans for a settlement and report at a joint convention to be held in January.

Fire Prevention Demonstrated in Display Windows

Fire Prevention Week, which was instituted in Lincoln Monday, will reach its climax Wednesday when the merchants will decorate their store windows appropriately to show the hazards caused by carelessly started fires, means of prevention and the methods of fighting blazes. Prizes of $15 and $10 have been offered by E. C. Folsom, chairman of the fire prevention committee of the Chamber of Commerce to the window decorater who has the most effective display. A number of down town business houses, as well as stores further out, will take part.

C. Petrus Peterson delivered two four-minute talks at the Liberty theater Monday night, and Frank Tomson of Woods Brothers companies will talk at the Lyric Tuesday evening. Boy Scouts are carrying the messages of fire prevention to the city schools, while posters and slides in the moving picture houses are also part of the program.

Think Broker Is Members Bootleg Ring at Chicago

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 3.—Much importance was attached by federal authorities late last night to the arrest of Samuel W. Selker, member of a prominent downtown real estate brokerage firm in connection with the alleged diversion to bootleggers of 400,000 gallons of alcohol withdrawn with permits to Louis Auerbach, Austin Subley for the manufacturer of hair tonics.

Auerhach and his brother Abraham said to be leaders in the alleged conspiracy are under $50,000 bonds. Joseph Breitenstein ,assistant United States district attorney says that Selker will be charged with conspiracy and that he will ask that his bond be fixed at an amount equal to Auerbach's when he is arraigned.

Selker is the fourth person arrested in the case.

Broadening Powers of War Corporation Has Good Influence

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 3.—Broadening of the powers of the war finance corporation has caused a feeling of renewed confidence to sweep the country, Secretary Wallace of the department of agriculture declared today in outlining before a meeting of farmers and business men the obstacles which stood in the path of agricultural development before the corporation was revived and the federal reserve act amended. Money became easier to obtain, he declared, adding that a more "liberal policy on farm loans was generally adapted: the sacrificing of grain and livestock was checked and the hope of the farmers was renewed.

"The story of the service rendered by this agency," Mr Wallace continued 'serves to illustrate the importance of taking the affirmative rather than the negative view in times of difficulty"

Four Reports In One Volume

A contract has been awarded by the state purchasing agent to the Claflin Printing Co., University Place, for printing 5,000 copies of a combined annual report for the state board of agriculture, the potato growers' association, the dairymen's association, and the crop growers association. Formerly, these were published as separate books.

The consolidated volumes for 1922 will have about 550 pages and will cost $6.39 per page for the 5,000 copies, making the total cost a little over $3,500.

IRISH OATH APPROVED.

DUBLIN, Oct. 3.—The parliament today passed by a large majority the clause of the new Irish constitution containing the oath of allegiance.

POLO PARK SEATS IN BRISK DEMAND

Every Reserved Pasteboard Sold In Advance of First Series Ball Game.

New Yorkers Busy Purchasing Tickets, But Enthusiasm of Last Year Missing.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—There is not enough money in the world to buy a reserved seat for the world series at either of the local baseball headquarters. Both are sold out to the tune of 18,000 seats for the first six days or a sum total of 108,000 tickets and only the fact that 22,000 unreserved seats will be placed on the sale on the day of each game gives the late comer a morsel of comfort.

Throngs of tardy fans are milling through the lobbies of both offices today trying to persuade some member of the respective staffs that they have over estimated the equation of supply and demand.

To these importunists is vouchsafed only one reply:

"Nor more reserved tickets. Line up the day of the game."

This indicates that, contrary to reports, New York is rising to its second exxclusive series in as many years with the same readiness that marked the 1921 series, when all attendance records were broken. On that occasion, however, nine games were played against seven this year; therefore, the actual returns on each can only be estimated by comparison.

Sny the Old Enthusiasm.

Regardless of the crying demand for seats, it is obvious that the old enthusiasm is not there. Local fans are a bit weary with championship ball clubs and interest in the outcome of the series may be said to be almost nil. Partisanship is a lost art here.

Your New Yorker, however, is a creature of habit. Going to a world series is something that is done by the best families. He does it, if the time and money is available. Hence the seliout.

Out of town newspapers are not sending special men to cover the series with the carefree abandon of 1921. On that occasion they came from as far off as Medicine Hat, Alberta, to say nothing of special correspondents from Cuba.

Baseball Notables There.

Active baseball men, however, are rallying around the event. Judge Landis, supreme head of baseball, has been here for several days. So has Garry Herrmann and a special party from Cincinnati, to say nothing of old-time players like Johnny Evers, Hans Lobert, Larry Doyle, Nick Altrock, Joe Kelly, Bob Conners and Bobby Gilks, the latter three Yankee scouts.

Miller Huggins, little, sour-faced manager of the Yankees, was around and about expressing confidence in his team.

"I've got my pitchers in good shape," quoth he. "And I expect them to carry us through. Pitching has always decided the world series. It will decide this one. Shawkey, Bush and Hoyt are right at the top of their strides, and Mays and Jones have been pitching much better ball through the last six weeks of the season.

Rival Managers Confident.

"The team has been in a batting slump during the past week, but I expect the boys to snap out of it, pronto."

John J. McGraw was a bit more positive than Huggins in his claims of a Giant victory.

"Of course, I expect the Giants to win," he said. "Why shouldn't they win? They are the better ball club and they will prove it. It is said that my pitching is bad. You haven't seen anything wrong with the work of Nehf, Scott, McQuillan and Jess Barnes during the last few weeks, have you? The pitchers will stand up all right, and behind them they will have a great hitting and fielding ball club."

Both teams worked out at separate hours at the Polo Grounds yesterday. They will repeat the operation today and then rest until game time Wednesday.

Dave Bancroft and Frank Frisch, both of whom suffered bone bruises in a recent exhibition game at Baltimore, took part in the workout, apparently none the worse for their injuries.

Oarsmen to Race at Legion Convention

NEW ORLEANS, La., Oct. 3.—Granville Gude of Washington, D. C., has accepted the challenge of Walter Hoover of Minnesota, world's champion single oarsman, to a sculling race for the championship at the American Legion national convention here October 16-20.

Missouri Grappler Dumped by Jordan

(Associated Press.)

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 3.—Chris Jordan of Cleveland, claimant of the world's middleweight wrestling title, defeated Gus Eisel, Missouri champion, in a mat match here last night. Eisel forfeited to Jordan after Jordan had secured one fall and Eisel claimed his shoulder was injured.

Revival of Racing Success In Chicago

(Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—Hawthorne's second day of betless horse racing Monday found the old, weather beaten track jammed with "bookies," "touts," "regulars" and others in sporting life who were anxious to wager their money on the outsome of the races. As in bygone years, a generation and more ago, there were little groups of individuals buzzing each other beneath the stand, but no money changed hands so far as could be ascertained by representatives of the state's attorney's office, who were present at the track.

Any betting was "oral" and it was hard to obtain evidence. Officials of the Illinois Jockey club expressed pleasure at the size of the crowd, which was given out as 7,000 against 20,000 admissions Saturday on opening day. They said that a continuation of this patronage would assure the return of horse racing.

Meanwhile the state's attorney announced that the evidence gathered against six alleged bookmakers arrested at the track on Saturday would be presented to the grand jury.

MANY DIPHTHERIA CARRIERS UNDER OBSERVATION HERE

Dr. Chapman Sounds Warning Against Further Spread of the Disease.

Urges Use of Antitoxin as Means to Stop Incipient Epidemic.

Dr. Chauncey F. Chapman, superintendent of health, Tuesday morning declared that there were 48 cases of diphtheria carriers under observation in Lincoln at the present time and three cases of the disease itself. In connection with this report, Dr. Chapman issued another warning to the public to watch carefully all infections of the throat, and advocated the use of antitoxin to stop any spread of the disease. Dr. Chapman's announcement follows:

"Diphtheria only becomes epidemic in years in which rainfall is deficient. There is no instant of a succession of wet years in which diphtheria is epidemic." This quotation from Newsholme has a peculiar interest in view of the prevalence of diphtheria in some parts of Nebraska at the present time. Diphtheria is always more common in fall and in cold weather. This may be explained by the opening of the schools and the crowding together of children as the mode of transmission is through the discharges of the mouth and nose. A few cases of born epidemics are on record, the milk becoming infected at the dairy from a carrier or a case.

Chronic carriers of diphtheria are always with us. At least 1 per cent of healthy school children, says Rosenau, are foud to carry morphologically typical diphtheria bacilli. In times of epidemic 8.7 per cent of the children in a New York school were found to be carriers. Graham-Smith found 66 per cent of the members of the family to which the diseased person belonged were infected, the percentage being higher where no precaution had been taken to isolate the patient. Zingher states that in New York city, 4 to 5 per cent of all persons are diphtheria bacillus carriers. Missed cases, the mild cases are also an important factor in the spread of the disease. It must be remembered, however, that a chronic carrier with a follicular tonsilities may show typical diphtheria organisms in a throat culture and not have diphtheria.

Children Most Suceptible.

About 50 per cent of all persons are naturally immune from diphtheria. Under 3 months, practically all children are immune. The maternal immunity then disappears and in the period from 6 months to 6 years comprising, according to Zingher, the age at which diphtheria has the highest morbidity and mortality, so many are susceptible, that all those exposed to the disease, namely, other children or close playmates should be given an immunizing dose of antitoxin. Whether or not a person is immune can be determined by the Shick reaction. This test consists of the intra-dwermal injection of a small amount of diphtheria toxin; if antitoxin is present the toxin injected will be neutralized and no reaction will follow, the person being immune. If no anti-toxin is present, as in a susceptible, the toxin will give rise to an inflammatory reaction at the site of innoculation, a positive reaction. Simple as this appears in theory, in practice it is very difficult and in many cases the result is doubtful even in the hands of experts. 1. It is unsafe in children after exposure to wait as the test takes 47-72 hours. 2. In adults, isolatio and throat examination gives better results in controlling the disease. 3. Seventy and 80 per cent of children give a positive Shick, hence it is unnecessary.

Susceptible individuals may be actively immunized against diphotheria by the injection of toxin-antitoxin mixture. This consists of three injections at weekly intervals of a mixture of diphtheria toxin and antitoxin. How long the immunity so produced lasts, is not positively known, probably six years and in many cases during life.

Children Most Susceptible. Prevention of Spread.

The most important measure in preventing the sperad of diphtheria is the prompt recognition of cases and their effective isolation. At a time when diphtheria is prevalent, frequent throat inspection should be made of all individuals exposed and all persons exposed who have sore throats should should be isolated until negative cultures have been secured. The time necessary to determine the result of the Shick test is 48 hours. The incubation period of the disease is from two to five days more often two, so by the time the Shick test is known most of those who are going to develop the disease will already have manifested sign or symptoms. The Shick test has therefore, been unnecessary. Antitoxin given in the first 24 hours is curative in practically 1700 per cent of the cases of diphtheria.

Wholesale culturing has proven valueless in the control of an epidemic. In the same category is placed the wholesale immunization with antitoxin. Under certain conditions as in orphanages the wholesale immunization with toxin-antitoxin mixture is very useful. The fact that it takes three weeks for immunity to develop, renders its use in an epidemic of doubtful value.

But Few Cases Here.

Lincoln has been comparatively very free from diphtheria considering our large student population. Many of these persons come from the farms and smaller towns and have thus not been immunized by contract. This was very strikingly shown in the civil war and in the great war, the recruits from suburban districts having a higher morbidity in contagious diseases than those from the cities. Zingher found that in New York children of the well-todo showed more susceptible to diphtheria than the children from the congested districts. Since January 1, 1918 to October 1, 1921, there were reported in Lincoln 248 cases of diphtheria with a mortality of 17. Of these 248 cases, 200 were in persons under 20 years of age. Again 141 were in children under 10 years of age. The largest single age group was the children of 5-10 years, among whom 86 cases occurred. During the present year, 2 deaths from diphtheria have occurred, ages being 7 and 3 years respectively.

The department of health, believing that the early diagnosis is of the utmost importance in control of this disease provides media and laboratory facilities for diagnosis. However, it is strongly advised in a suspicious case to give anti-toxin and not wait for the results from the culture. Very frequently negative cultures are secured at first from typical cases, later securing positive cultures. Before the patients are discharged, two negative cultures must be secured. The superintendent of health goes with the physician on all cases where the diagnosis is in doubt, when requested by the attending physician.

To effectively control diphetheria, prompt recognition of cases is of prime importance; cultures are an aid to diagnosis but can not take the place of clinical experience in recognizing cases; isolation of all cases and suspecious cases till cultures are negative; isolation of close contracts till cultures are negative; prompt injection of antitoxin in all suspecious cases and immunizing doses in all children who have been in close contact with a case; all suspicious nasal and laryngeal cases should be treated as diphtheria until proven otherwise. If the physician waits until he can make an absolute diagnosis, the patient may be dead.

INAUGURATE NEW HEAD OF COTNER

Installation of Charles Elliott Cobbey Takes Place at Bethany.

President in Response Tells of Responsibility and Opportunity.

Charles Elliott Cobbey, formerly pastor of the First Christian church of Omaha, was inaugurated president of Cotner college Tuesday, at Bethany.

The ceremony began with a grand march. The procession, including the president, speakers of the day, the board of trustees, the faculty, visiting friends, the entire student body, and their friends, and citizens of Bethany, started from the college building at 10 a. m., sharp. Marching to the Bethany Christian church they entered the auditorium while Miss Alice Sorensen, head of the department of music played the processional. Mrs. Evabelle Long-Fuller, head of voce department, sang the opening solo. Dr. William Prince Aylsworth, chancellor emeritus pronounced the invocation. Clarence A. Davis, attorney general, brought greeting from the state of Nebraska and made a short address. Greetings from the colleges of the state came through Dr. John H. Bennet, president of Doane college; from the state schools, by John H. Matzen, state superntendent; from State Teachers' association, by W. H. Morton, president of the association; from Nebraska Christian churches, by M. Lee Sorey, pastor of the Church at Beatrice and president of state board; from the National Board of Education, by H. O. Pritchard, general secretary.

E. F. Snavely, president of board of trustees, invested the new president with authority and gave him the keys of the college. President Cobbey then made a fitting response. Rev. Charles F. Stevens, pastor of the Bethany church, pronounced the benediction.

President Cobbey is an alumnus of Cotner. He has done an outstanding work as leader in the church. For the last seven years he has been pastor of the First Christian church, at Omaha. It was his thorough organization, and his evident executive ability, as well as his educational outlook, displayed in his church that attracted the attention of the board of trustees.

Makes Response.

President Cobbey in his response said:

The chairman of the Cotner board of trustees offers me the presidency of Cotner college.

"I accept the position, realizing that it is a great honor, that it is a great responsibility, and that it is a great opportunity.

"I thank, you Mr. Chairman, for your gracious words.

"I thank the board of trustees for conferring upon me this high office.

"I thank those who have spoken for their kind and helpful words.

"I am grateful for the many friends who have by word, letter, special delivery, telephone and telegraph helped me by their warm expressions of good will.

"I have especially appreciated the welcome extended to me by the heads of other colleges and universities. It convinces me that I have entered into a rare fellowship with noble men. It shall be my desire to strengthen this bond. Ours is a relationship of co-operation and not competition. In the broad field of higher education the task is so large as to challenge the last school to do its utmost. We need each other and the state needs all.

1. The honor.

"The honor I feel in accepting this position arises to some extent from personal contacts. For many years my father was a member of the board of trustees of Cotner. As a child I have heard my father talk over Cotner matters with my mother. It gave me an exalted conception of the school and at a very early period in my life turned my thoughts toward Cotner. Then I felt that it would be honor enough to be a student here, nor did I dream of becoming its head. At last my high school work was done and it was a happy day when I enrolled as a student in Cotner.

"My years in Cotner were rich in development. I realize now that it was during those years that I learned to be at home in all lands and ages, that the door to nature was opened and I caught a glimpse of God's great handiwork from the amoeba up, a glimpse that has lured me on and given to me a love for nature that has blessed my life. It was during those years that I acquired the knowledge of how to find in the great wealth of literature the things I wanted. And chiefest among the blessings of those days was the personal contact of William Prince Aylsworth, our chancellor.

"He was already exalted in my mind by the respect held and expressed by my parents, for him. To study under such a man. To come to know him in an intimate way and feel the impulse of his Godly personality was a benediction to my life. But that I should some day be called to wear the mantle of his office was an honor beyond my dreams.

Value of Cotner's Work.

"Then in the course of years the day came when I was chosen to serve upon the board of trustees. This service brought Cotner still closer. It enabled me to study the process of education and the development of student life. As a trustee I became thoroughly convinced of the tremendous value of Cotner's work. From this viewpoint I exalted the office of the president until in my judgment few men could measure up to such a responsibility.

"Perhaps I can claim as much credit for A. D. Harmon's being called to the presidency of Cotner as any one. Following him in the Omaha pastorate and believing in him with a faith born from the testimony of his people, I led the church in supplementing Dr. Harmon's salary so that he could undertake this work. From that day on a real friendship bound us. I was following in his footsteps as the pastor of his former congregation, backing him in his work at Cotner and serving as a member of the board of trustees. A. D. Harmon was a great president. He magnified the office. And no one felt a keener sense of loss than myself when he resigned.

"Then to have my brethren ask me to take this office that has held such an exalted place in my mind ever since I was a little boy, was an honor seemingly too great. For me to try to follow in the footsteps of those that I had idealized at first seemed utterly beyond me. And it was only after I was assured that the brethren in the state had confidence in me and that Chancellor Aylsworth and President Harmon both favored my choice that I was willing to accept this honor.

"The highest honor, as I believe, the Disciples of Christ in Cotner territory can bestow. I say this, not to boast, but that you may all know that I fully realize what you have done and that you may know that I am truly grateful.

Tells of Responsibility.

The responsibility.

"Where there is great honor there is great responsibility.

"My intimate and varied touch with the school has enabled me to appreciate the almost overwhelming responsibility of the president's office. To any true man the responsibility is co-existant with the honor, and is sufficient to keep him humble and prayerful.

"First of all, I recognize my responsibility to the students. The school was built and is maintained for the student. The president is the servant of the student. 'He that would be chiefest among you let him be the servant of all.' I am not unmindful, however, that some times the way prexy can serve best is by discipline. But to see that each student has the best, that no one is sinned against by neglect or bias, intellectually, physically, socially or spiritually, that, indeed, is a responsibility beyond computation.

"Then there is the responsibility to the Disciples of Christ. Our brotherhood has maintained Cotner by the sacrifices of her consecrated. No easy money has as yet lifted the burdens that we bear. Fathers and mothers with stooped shoulders but lofty dreams for their children have given. Many poor in this world's goods, but rich in great visions of the needs of the kingdom, our of their poverty have given. The Master has blessed their gifts until they have accomplished almost the impossible. I feel that to justify such loyalty on the part of our brotherhood is a grave responsibility.

"Then there is the responsibility to the teachers. They have shared in the sacrifice to make Cotner possible. To see that they have their reward. To see that their burdens are lifted. To see that they have the advantages needed to impart the truth they teach is a responsibility of no mean proportion.

"The responsibility to the state alone sobers one as he recognizes the dire need of balanced leadership today and admits the truth of Humboldt, "Whatever you would put into the state you must first put into the school." H. G. Wells asserts, "History is a race between education and disaster." In the eyes of the state we must justify our existence. This, too, is a great responsibility.

"Then above all I feel a responsibility to Providence. Cotner was founded by men of faith in the name of God for the express purpose of advancing His Kingdom. Gifts have been solicited on this basis. It is unthinkable that to the least degree this high and exalted purpose should be lowered or altered.

Points To Opportunity.

"While great honor brings great responsibility, it is equally true,

"Great responsibility brings great opportunity.

"Here again the first opportunity is found in the student body. The raw material entering college is very wholesome, eager, ambitious, impressionable life—and yet life that has not in the main determined upon its aim. Life that has not set its stakes, nor run its lines. The finished product of the college is life that is still eager and ambitious and determined, but life in the main that has chosen its aim, set its stakes and run its lines. For good or for bad, the direction that life is to travel has largely been determined during those four years in college.

"To realize the opportunity that student life offers to a school, to impress upon civilization the ideals of that school, and to realize the opportunity of the president's leadership in such an opportunity is almost staggering in its possibilities.

"One small western college founded in 1851 has made the following contribution to the nation.

Two United States senators.
Two governors.
Three United States officials.
Four congressmen.
Twelve college presidents.
Thirty-two college professors.
Seven authors.
Eight editors.
Thirteen superintendents of school.
One hunred and one public school teachers.
Seventy-five preachers.
Nine missionaries.
Nine bankers.
Seventeen physicians.
Twenty-five yawlers.
Forty-six business men.
Thirteen farmers.
Four Y. M. C. A. secretaries.

"Less than one per cent of American men are college graduates. Yet out of this one per cent, have come:

Fifty-five per cent of our prisednt.
Thirty-six per cent of the members of congress.
Forty-seven per cent of speakers of the house.
Fifty-six per cent of the vice presidents.
Sixty-two per cent of the secretaries of state.
Fifty per cent of the secretaries of the treasury.
Sixty-nine per cent of the justices of the supreme court."

"In the light of these facts we can see the truth of David Starr Jordan's statement, "The universities of Europe have shaped the civilization of the world."

"An influence so powerful may easily become dangerous, an opportunity so potent for good has innately equal opportunity for evil.

"Herbert Spencer was expressing this thought when he said, "To educate the reason without educating the desire is like placing a repeating rifle in the hands of a savage." Roosevelt, "To educate a man in mind and not in morals is to educate a menace to society."

Macauley, "Nine-tenths of the calamities which have befallen the human race had no other origin than the union of high intelligence with low desires."

"As I stated in the beginning of my acceptance, I believe there is a place for every school of higher learning, that we are co-operative. Yet I do believe that each school has some advantages over the others. I recognize, for example, that the state university has advantages over the small church college, many advantages in fact. But in the supplying of this one important element so tremendously needed in higher education today, I believe the small school has the advantage over the state I believe the large universities are recognizing this need as well as the small schools and some of them are taking heroic steps to meet the need, but the fact remains, for the present, in my judgment, that the small church school, such as Cotner, has the opportunity in supplying a Christain emphasis that is vital in the life of the world today.

"Roger Babson has expressed his belief in the words, "The need of the hour is not more factories or materials, not more railroads or steamships, not more armies or more navies, but rather more education based on the plain teaching of Jesus."

"This is but a glimpse of the service that I feel such a school as Cotner has an opportunity of rendering to its day and generation.

"Again, Mr. Chairman, I want to thank you and the board of trustees of Cotner college for your offer.

"I accept the presidency, grateful for the honor, humbled by the great responsibility and enthused and stimulated to utmost service by the vision of unlimited opportunity."

Makes a Family Supply of Cough Remedy

Really better than ready-made cough syrups, and saves about $5. Easily and quickly prepared.

If you combined the curative properties of every known "ready-made" cough remedy, you probably could not get as much real curative power as there is in this simple home-made cough syrup, which is easily prepared in a few minutes.

Get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with syrup, using either plain granulated sugar syrup, clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, as desired. The result is a full pint of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Tastes pleasant and never spoils.

This Pinex and Syrup preparation gets right at the cause of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the phlegm, stops the nasty throat tickle and heals the sore, irritated membranes so gently and easily that it is really astonishing.

A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough and for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma, there is nothing better.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations to break severe coughs.

Refined, Delicate Skin Secured by Absorption

No complexion can be considered beautiful if the skin is coarse in texture. This trouble can be overcome by opening and cleansing the pores, the closing of which makes the skin rough. To open the pores and remove dirt and impurities, use the mercolized wax process. The wax completely absorbs the rough, faded or discolored outer skin and unclogs the pores. The fresh young skin underneath then in evidence is exquisitely delicate, refined ad beautiful. And it is kept so, as the pores now freely expel effete matter and drink in the life-giving, circulation promoting oxygen.

Mercolized wax, because of its wonderful absorption power, is fast superceding other treatments for coarse, pimply, yellow, muddy or blotchy skin. It is applied at night like cold cream and washed off next morning. The wax, to be had at any drug store (one ounce will do), is entirely harmless.—Advertisement.

FRAZEE KIND TO YANKEES; DUGAN DEAL DECIDES PENNANT

TAINTED PENNANT WON BY YANKEES

Dugan Deal In Mid-Season Put New Yorkers On Their Way.

Gotham Team Deep in Dumps Until Frazee Sold Star For Hard Cash.

No mistake was made when George Sisler was voted the most valuable man to the American league in general and the St. Louis Browns in particular but, through an unfortunate oversight, nothing was said of the most valuable man to the New York Yankees. The individual in question is a modest soul and possibly does not seek the limelight in this instance, but virtue shall have its reward.

He is Harry Frazee, who either sold or traded Ruth, Mays, Schang, Hoyt, Jones, Bush, Scott, Elmer Smith and Dugan to the New York club at convenient intervals and accepted quite a few important dollars and unimportant ball players in return.

Dugan Turned the Tide.

The most convenient interval of the lot marked the passing of Joe Dugan to the Yankees. It was this young man who won the pennant for the New York entry and none other. It cannot be gainsaid that Bush pitched the team into upward of twenty-seven victories, that Scott was a master worker at shortstop and that Ruth's hitting always was a factor.

But with Bush pitching his head off, Ruth hitting them beyond the fences and Scott digging miracles out of the infield dust, the Yanks were a beaten club before they got Dugan. They began the season with the aged and infirm Baker at third base. He wouldn't do. Everything became a base hit down that way.

McNally Couldn't Hit.

Then they countered with Mike McNally, agile, young, ambitious and hitless. The mase hit "alley" was closed for the time being, but where the defense gained the offense suffered. Mike lost lots of games by his inability to hit good pitching.

There was only one third baseman in the American league that could be brought to the relief of the harassed Huggins and his name was Dugan. Fortunately, or unfortunately, according to the viewpoint, the said Dugan was the property of good, old Harry Frazee.

It had been taken for granted that, after Dugan was traded to the Red Sox from Philadelphia via Washington in the early spring, he ultimately would be passed on to New York. But no one believed Frazee would have the effrontery to make the deal at such a date.

However, brothers Jake and Tit were in trouble. They called and Harry answered. Dugan joined the Yankees on Sunday, July 23. At that time the Yanks were a game and a half behind the Browns and headed due south. Since then they won some forty-one ball games out of fifty-eight played for a percentage well above the .700 mark.

Let your conscience be your guide.

Wilson has not yet consented to the match, it was said.

COLLEGE TEAMS START THIS WEEK

Five Grid Games By Nebraska Conference Members On Slate for Friday.

GAMES THIS WEEK.

Midland college vs. Cotner college Behany.

Nebraska Wesleyan vs. Wayne Normal at Peru.

York college vs. Peru Normal at Peru.

Nebraska Central vs. Grand Island college at Grand Island.

Kearney Normal vs. Hastings college at Hastings.

The Nebraska intercollegiate football season will open this week when ten of the members of college conference circuit will meet on the gridiron. Two teams are not billed to swing into action until next week. The late entries will be Doane colege and Chadron Normal.

Kearney Normal and Nebraska Central hoisted the curtain a trifle last week at Kearney in the first college game of the year. The Kearney Antelopes humbled the Quakers, 20 to 0.

Wesleyan At Wayne.

Memories of the 1921 championship race will be revived this week when Wayne and Nebraska Wesleyan meet on the Wayne grid. The Pedagogues and Methodists met in a post-season state title contest last fall, Wesleyan winning by a 17 to 3 score.

Indications point to a long waight margin in favor of the Yellow and Brown, but Coach Dale's men are reported to be planning a bewildering aerial attack to offset the Methodists' superior beef.

Cotner and Midland will open the season at Bethany. Coach Ben Koehler sent his Bulldog squad against the Cotner alumni this afternoon by way of preparation for the Friday game. Cotner and Midland did not meet on the gridiron last fall.

Hastings vs. Kearney Normal.

Hastings college will open with Kearney Normal. Coach Holste of the Hastings Bronchos has a large group of veterans this year. Several former Hastings high grid stars are attending the Presbyterian school and making a strong bid for places on the team.

Coach Fulmer's Kearney Antelopes are reported to be possessed of a strong line. The Quakers had the ball one foot from the goal in the Saturday game, but were unable to budge the Kearney forwards. Kearney and Hastings played a 7 to 7 tie last year.

Nebraska Central and Grand Island college are scheduled to meet at Grand Island. The Baptists have been working hard the past week.

York college and Peru Normal meet at Peru. The Yorkers forfeited to Peru last year when it was discovered, late in the season, an ineligible man had been used in previous games.

HUSKERS COME OUT OF SLUMP

Some Improvement Shown By Dawson's Men In Monday Scrimmage Test.

Cornhusker football fans were given a slight inkling Monday afternoon of the possible personnel of the first-string lineup that will swing into action next Saturday afternoon against the South Dakota Coyotes in the 1922 gridiron inaugural on Nebraska field. Head Coach Dawson drove his varsity candidates through grueling thirty-minute scrimmage. The first team lineup included Scherer and Schoeppel at the ends, Weller and Wenke at tackles, Berquist and McGlasson at guards, Peterson at center, Preston at quarterback, Noble and Dewitz at halfbacks and Captain Hartley at fullback.

The first-string combination in action Monday afternoon played the game with more fire and aggressiveness than had been on display in previous workouts, driving around and through the varsity seconds to a string of touchdowns, and the head coach, while silent on the subject, must have had reason to hope that the Cornhuskers are making headway in their battle against the attack of overconfidence which marred last week's scrimmage sessions—that the Huskers are getting around to a realization of the danger of under-rating the Coyotes' strength.

Open Practice Tuesday.

The program mapped out for Tuesday afternoon by the head tutor of the Husker warriors included a scrimmage bout between the varsity and Coach Farley Young's freshmen. The gates were ordered swung back for a session of open practice and Nebraska students, while watching practice, were scheduled to participate in a rooting rehearsal.

Roster of officials engaged for Saturday's Nebraska-South Dakota battle follows:

Referee—A. G. Reid, Michigan university.

Umpire—Earl Johnson, Doane college.

Headlinesman — Clyde Williams, Iowa university.

Clyde Williams was a familiar figure on the Nebraska gridiron prior to a few years ago. The former quarterback and captain of the Iowa Hawkeyes served as director of athletics and head football coach at the Ames Aggie college during a term of nearly fifteen years, bringing his Aggies to Lincoln on alternate years.

Senators Set New Record in Staging Double Killings

(Associated Press).

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3—Exceeding by ten the best previous mark of 155 double plays in a season, established jointly last year by the Chicago Americans and the New York Nationals, the Washington Americans, according to statistics compiled today, won major league honors for twin killings during the season, which ended Sunday. The Senators' total of 165 is the highest ever registered by a big league club.

The final totals, which are regarded as authoritative, as they are furnished by Irwin Howe, official statistician of the American league, show the leading teams in the two leagues in the matter of double plays as follows.

American—Washington, 165; St. Louis, 156.

National—Chicago, 159; Philadelphia, 155.

Betting On Series Light; Odds Even

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Although betting on the outcome of the world series between the Yanks and Giants has been noticeably light, it is expected it will become more brisk within the ensuing 24 hours. Most of those speculatively inclined are waiting for even money and this price is expected to prevail before game time tomorrow.

Little advance betting has been reported at the McAlpin or at the Waldorf-Astoria, although Chief Detective Smith at the Waldorf has received some fair-sized commissions by wire and mail, most of them at even money.

A. G. Dennison at the McAlpin has several thousand dollars, no more, as stakes. Most of the betting has been made on single game returns.

Umpires Selected For World Series

(Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—W. J. Klem and W. McCormick for the National league and C. B. Owens and George Hildebrand for the American league were selected as the umpires for the world series by Commissioner K. M. Landis.

President Heydler of the National league announced that E. C. Quigley and Robert Hart would officiate for the older organizations in the Chicago city series between the Cubs and White Sox.

Blind Oarsman At Harvard U.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 3.—William J. Segge, Jr., of Winchester, a blind student, has reported for the Harvard freshman crew. He was assigned by Dr. R. Heber Howe to the stroke position on crew F. The blind oarsman had an hour's workout today. He formerly rowed for Tabor academy.

BASEBALL FEVER INFECTS GOTHAM

Bugs On Tiptoes and Counting the Hours Until Umpires Give the Word.

Lefty Nehf and Bullet Bush Likely Pitching Picks By Rival Managers.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH.

(International News Service.)

NEW YORK Oct. 3—Broadway and its network of feeding arteries, otherwise known as the Roaring Forties has begun to run something of a temperature with the first game of New York's private little big series for the world's championship, a matter of twenty-four hours away.

Thousands of visitors from points west, south and north are parading the famous thoroughfare, standing in hotel lobbies and comporting themselves as might suit their convenience.

The annual convention of the American Bankers' association has cast ten thousand members on the life stream of the town. When not engaged in the problems of finance they stand around and discuss the respective chances of the Giants and Yanks.

Old-timers of the ball field are here, which is nothing new. They always rally around a world series.

Fans Flock From Everywhere.

Fans wrom other sections of the country, the incurable specimen who must be in at the death; baseball correspondents armed with typewriters and a determination to miss nothing helps to swell the throng.

A warm, almost mid-summer sunshine beams down upon all.

It is supposed, according to the weather bureau, to spread its stuff tomorro wand again on Thursday, with the possibility that showers and the cooler weather may come later in the week.

The rest of the details have been swept up in a neat, tidy pile. No reserved tickets are on hand in either office and only the 22,000 unreserved seats for each day remain. These will be disposed of the day of each game and purchasers will be required to enter the park immediately—an honest attempt to break up speculating.

Rival Teams In Fine Fettle.

The teams will engage in their last work out today. This does not mean much, if anything. Both are in first-class condition and nothing they can do in the meantime will bring a finer edge to their form before game time tomorrow.

It is a virtual certainty that McGraw will start Art Nehf, his curve ball left-hander, against Joe Bush, the Yanks' fast-ball ace, in tomorrow's inaugural. Nehf created a world series record in holding the Yanks to 13 hits in three games last year. The chances are against him repeating, particularly since he has had an indifferent season. Bush has enjoyed his most prosperous campaign since coming to the big leagues in 1913.

There is little evidence of partisanship among the fans. Manhattan promises to go out and look at the thing, but apparently wishes to notify one and all concerned that it is compelled to become neither agitated nor enthusiastic.

Players Bury Their Hatchets.

The players of both teams are hardly inimical, either. They are more than friendly; all little pals together, in fact.

However, the future is a shy, evasive animal. According to official edict, Bill Klem and Barry McCormick of the National league staff and "Brick" Owens and George Hildebrand of the American league will umpire the series. The Yanks and Hildebrand are on terms of perfect understanding. It is one of those very beautiful friendships that seeks expression by saying it with heel prints. Let Hildy pull an adverse decision or so, and the Yanks will want to tick him and the Giants as well.

The betting, as anticipated, has dropepd to 6to 5 on the Yanks and in some cases t oeven money. Most of the boys ,however, manage to keep their hands in their pockets and their tongues between their teeth.

Judge Landis, who has taken up his headquarters at the Commodore, again wishes to assure prospective seat occupants that plenty of seats can be purchased at the Polo Ground each day. All you have to do is park yourself early and avoid your neighbors, pockets.

Old-Time Stars On Hand.

The "I-knew-him-when club" is gathering delegates every hour. Members already on hand and taking a leading part in the meetings are Fred Clarke, former manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates and a great outfielder, Wilber T. Robinson, fat, funny and fifty; torn between his friendship for John McGraw and "Cap" Huston, George Washington Grant, president of the Braves; Pat Moran and Garry Herrmann, manager and magnate of Cincinnati; Jack Dunn, who thinks McGraw likes Jack Bentley better than he does $100,000; Hans Lobert, ex-Giant, ex-Phil, ex-Red; Fred Jacklitsch, so energetic he used to warm up pitchers in a rocking chair out in the bull pen; Dan Brouthers chmapion hitter of a past generation, and many others.

They dope the series according to their affiliations, and each can give you a perfectly plausible reaeson why either the Giants or Yanks can and will win.

Team Managers In Hiding.

Huggins and McGraw, rival managers, have been hiding out, more or less. If you can do some open field running through a squad of office attaches, you can have a word with either at their respective offices. Otherwise, John and the worthy Miller are not for public view.

Huggins is a bit reticent about expressing his opinion of the outcome. He says he thinks the Yanks will win, basing his prediction upon the commendable condition of Bush, Hoyt and Shawkey, his first-string pitchers, and the fact that the estimable Mr. Ruth is bringing his fragile anatomy to the series intact.

Mr. Ruth overlooked that detail last year.

McGraw is a trifle more positive in his views. Nehf, Scott, McQuillan and Jess Barnes, he says, will pitch good ball and the Giant hitters, constituting the most effective offensive machine in baseball, will get to the Yank pitchers and blast out a victory.

JACKSON IDOL OF AUSTRALIAN FANS

Followers of Glove Sport In Antipoles Acclaim Peter Greatest of All.

BY FRANK G. MENKE.

(Copyright 1922 by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

SYDNEY, Australia, Oct. 3.—They've had a lot of fistic heroes in these parts in the days that are gone—but Peter Jackson always will be remembered as the greatest gladiator Australia ever produced.

Bob Fitzsimmons, man of the mighty maulies, is generally regarded as an Australian. But Fitz was a Cornishman by birth and came to these shores some years afterward. Here it was that he gained his first fistic fame; here it was that he rose to a certain greatness.

But someway, somehow, the Australasian refuses to regard Fitz as one of his own and looks upon him as more of an adopted son than anything else.

And yet he will regard Jackson, a West Indian by birth, as a native son and as a real Australian product.

Native of West Indies.

Jackson was born in St. Croix, West Indies, in 1861 and came here some years afterward. In his late teens he worked on a farm not far from Sydney. His was the work of a laborer.

For diversion Jackson took up rowing. Before he was twenty he was considered one of the best scullers in these parts. He might have stuck to that and never have become a boxer if it hadn't been for a peculiar ruling of fate.

Jackson used to go to both Sydney and Melbourne every so often. During one of his visits to Melbourne he heard about a fighter there who was knocking 'em all overboard. Jackson didn't know much about boxing then—but he was a good rough and tumble person and reckoned that he had enough fistic knowledge to beat up the Melbourne champ.

But he didn't not then.

Lost His First Fight.

For the Melbourne fighter—Bill Farnam—knocked out Peter in three rounds. That was on July 26, 1884. Defeat got Peter all "steamed up" and he vowed to get revenge. He sought out a man who knew a little something about boxing and asked him to teach him a few tricks.

About a month later Peter reckoned he knew enough to whip Farnam. He challenged. The defi was accepted. And the bout was staged in Melbourne on Sept. 4, 1884.

Peter couldn't knock out Farnan, but punched him into such a fearful state that when the sixth round arrived the police stopped the milling.

Peter Gets His Revenge.

Jackson had secured his revenge. He decided he was through with the game. He didn't fight again for two years. But he had come to love boxing—and utilized his spare hours in learning more and more about the art of self defense.

He spent a great part of his time time in a gymnasium in Sydney. The fans came to know about his development and urged him to go back to "pro" fighting. But Jackson refused—until he was offered a bout with Tommy Lees, then regarded as the heavyweight champion of Australia.

Jackson had seen Lees in action—and felt certain he could whip him. He said so to some friends and at once there was talk of a match between the two. A suitable purse was offered—and Jackson and Lees met here in Sydney on Sept. 25, 1886. Jackson won in the 30th round.

Comes to America.

Again Jackson quit the ring. Eventually he tired of Australia and decided to go to the U. S. A. That was in 1888. Arriving there he found no work of the kind he wanted to do and more through necessity than desire, again donned ring harness.

On Aug. 24, 1889—more than five years after his first fight—Jackson went into the fourth real battle of his career. It was against George Godfrey in San Francisco. Jackson won in the 18th.

A few months later Jackson knocked out Joe McAuliffe in 24 rounds. He loafed around a few months—and then started on his real career—in 1889.

Sully Drew "Color Line."

In that year he fought 14 fights—and won them all. He fought seven times in 1890—and never suffered defeat. He met every tough one who cared to mix it with him—and all the while challenged John L. Sullivan.

But in vain. For Sullivan had already drawn the "color line."

In 1891 Jackson fought the memorable 61-round draw with Jim Corbett. The following year he fought three times—and won each battle.

Six years elapsed—and during them all Jackson never drew on a glove. Then—in 1898—he met Jim Jeffries and lost in three rounds. That was the last fight of his career.

Jackson took sick soon afterward, returned to Australia, and died a short time later in Brisbane. A big marble monument marks the last resting place of the warrior whom Australia ever will acclaim "the greatest."

SERIES CUT DOWN TO SEVEN GAMES

Winner of 4 Contests to Cop the Crown as Champions of Diamond Sport.

Prophets Strong for Theory That Victory Will Hinge on Work of Pitchers.

(Associated Press).

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—The New York Giants and Yankees, standard bearers of the National and American leagues, were tuned to concert pitch today in the final workouts, in preparation for the opening tomorrow of their second consecutive struggle for premier baseball honors. The Giants were victors last year in a tensely fought world's series that lasted eight games. The laurels this year will go to the team winning four out of seven.

With a shorter series, attendance records were not expected to succeed last year's high mark—269,977 paid admissions for eight games—but indications pointed to capacity demands. Club officials today announced a sellout in reserved seats for the first six games, with thousands of unfilled applications. This is exclusive, however of 22,000 unreserved seats in the bleachers and upper tier of the grandstands, which will go on sale each day at 10 a. m.

Even Babe Ruth was unable to satisfy a last minute desire for tickets. The Yankee slugger appeared at the Giants' offices in his quest.

No Tickets for Ruth.

"Sorry, Babe' but there isn't even a hope left," he was told. He was but one of many.

Advance guards of delegations from all parts of the U. S., Canada and outlying points were on hand early today. The influx was expected to reach its height tonight.

Close to 500 newspaper men from all parts of the continent were on hand to supply millions of newspaper readers first-hand accounts of the series. Two hundred additional press applications could not be granted because of the limited facilities.

Promise of fair weather, with ideal temperatures, not only for the opening game, but probably for the rest of the week, was given.

But above and beyond the cold and material facts, fans in the highways and byways were absorbed in the battle of "ifs" and "ands"—the pro and con that wages back and forth over the merits of the contenders.

Partisans Have Their Say.

Those who asserted vehemently that the predominating pitching strength of the Yankees would be the decisive factor were as emphatically answered by those who believe that the hard hitting, quick thinking and aggressive attack of the Giants would overcome any disadvantage on the mound.

Neither manager has committed himself to prediction of victory.

"I look for a higher grade of baseball this year than we had a year ago," John McGraw declared.

Miller Huggins was perhaps a little more outspoken.

"We have a great lot of pitchers," he said. "We have a terrific hitter in Ruth—a game, hard hitting, fighting ball club—a far better team than the one the Giants beat last year."

Pitching Prime Factor.

Pitching has been the outstanding factor in world series triumphs over a span of two decades. Records reveal an unusual proportion of shutout twirling—close to a third of the games ending with one team scoreless, with the high mark in 1905, when the Giants blanked the Athletics four times to win, while the Mackmen turned the shutout tables once.

Six of the eight games last year were pitching duels, with Waite Hoyt, Phil Douglas, Jess Barnes and Art Nehf in the spotlight.

This year Huggins has five stars—Hoyt, Mays, Bush, Shawkey and Jones to oppose Scott, Nehf, McQuillan, Barnes and Ryan of the Giants.

Bush and Shawkey stand head and shoulders above the rest in season performances.

Giant Pitchers Show Form.

McGraw's staff, faltering badly in the latter part of the campaign, apparently has rounded into more consistent form.

Bush, whom Huggins has picked to open the series, has been handicapped for a while by a stone bruise on his left foot, but the Yankee manager asserted during the team's workout yesterday that his star twirler has practically recovered.

Southpaw Art Nehf is expected to draw McGraw's opening assignment.

PHYSICIANS FORBID FIGHT.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 3.—Physicians barred Pancho Villa, the new American flyweight boxing champion, from his scheduled bout last night with Battling Murray, declaring that the champion is suffering from chickenpox.

"Big Six" to See Diamond Classic

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—"Big Six," victorious in his battle for life, is coming back to the scene of his greatest diamond triumps.

Idol of New York fandom for more than a decade and hero of one of the great world's series triumphs in history, Christy Mathewson will return to witness the battle between the Yankees and Giants. It will be the first real game "Matty" has seen in three years, since he began and won the fight for health shattered by war experience.

Out of more than a decade of brilliant pitching achievements, "Matty's" record of three shutouts in the 1905 series, when the Giants defeated the Athletics, stands by itself in a niche of the hall of fame. He also was with the Giants in the series of 1911, 1912 and 1913.

YANK SHORTSTOP BIDS FOR RECORD

Scott Squares Off to Play Ball In One Thousand Consecutive Games.

(Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Everett Scott, shortstop, who will take the field with the Yankees tomorrow in the first game of the world's series, will finish the American league season this year within fourteen games of his goal—playing in 1,000 consecutive major league contests.

His streak of 986 straight games, far beyond all previous records, was started June 20, 1916, with Boston. He was with the Red Sox until traded to New York last winter.

The record nearest to Scott's is 577 games, made from 1885 to 1890 in the old American association and National league by George H. Pinckney of the Brooklyn team. Fred Luderus of the Philadelphia Nationals holds the modern National league record—533 games played between 1916 and 1919.

TOPEKA, Kas., Oct 3.—Governor Henry J. Allen of Kansas will be the mascot of the Kansas university football team when it plays the army eleven at West Point next Saturday. The governor left Topeka yesterday for the east.

Golf Pros Rebuked By Dixie Officials

(Associated Press.)

NASHVILE, Tenn., Oct. 3—The southern open golf tournament failed to produce a champion, according to a statement issued last night by President H. F. Smith of the Southern Golf association. He declared that the playoff of three holes, after Leo Diegel of New Orleans and Abe Mitchell of England were tied for the second time at the end of the extra 36 holes, was an illegal arrangement between the British and the Louisiana pro.

Mr. Smith pointed out that, on that account, the southern golf association could not recognize either as champion.

Mitchell and Diegel agreed to consolidate first and second money and divide the $2,500 in equal parts as their share of the purse when they were square at the completion of the 36-hole playoff. The three-hole agreement was a private arrangement without the sanction of the Souther Golf association, according to President Smith's statement.

Finnish Runner Smashes Record

(Associated Press.)

HELSINGFORS, Oct. 2.—Hannes Kolehmainen, the Finnish runner, yesterday broke the world's record for thirty kilometers, doing the distance in one hour, 47 minutes and 13.3 seconds.

The previous record was held by A. Stenroos, also of Finland, who finished in one hour, 48 minutes and 6.2 seconds in 1915.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.

Foreign dispatches indicating a peaceful settlement of Near East problems combined with industrial domestic news, furnished the impetus for another advance in prices in today's strong market. Resumption of activity on the part of pools resulted in several special stocks being pushed up to new high records for the year. High prices railroad and industrial shares were most in demand with the Standard Oil issues foremost in the rise. Sales approximated nearly 1,000,000 shares.

The rapid advance in oil shares which ranged from 1 to 4 points featured the strong opening of today's stock market. Standard Oil of California was pushed up 4 points to a new high for the year, and gains of 2 to 2½ points were registered by Standard Oil of New Jersey, Associated Oil and Mexican Petroleum. On the curb market, Standard Oil of New York opened up 10 points to 565 and then soared to a record high of 573, a net gain of 186 points. Rails also were in good demand, New York, Chicago & St. Louis first preferred, mounting 2 points to a new high record, and Lackawanna duplicating its high of the year on a similar gain. National Biscuit established a new peak price on a gain of 4½ points and Loose-Wiles advanced 2¾ in sympathy. Public utilities, equipment and sugar shares, were also bought at higher prices. Strength of American Express, which moved up 4 points, was one of the features of the specialty list. General Asphalt and Pierce Oil preferred were heavy.

Absorption of high priced stocks was so confident during the afternoon that the bears became apprehensive of their position and desisted from trying to uncover weak spots. Steels rallied readily when pressure was removed. Standard Oil shares were buoyant. Season dividend-paying railroads were in great demand. Standard Oil of New Jersey mounted 6 points, Standard Oil of California 5½, Associated Oil 4¾, General American Tank 4, Sou 3¾, Louisville and Nashville and Stromberg 3 and Norfolk & Western, Delaware & Hudson, Atlantic Coast Line, Chesapeake & Ohio, American Tobacco B, Chicago Pneumatic Tool, American Hide & Leather preferred, General Electric and American Beet Sugar, 2 to 2½. Otis Elevator developed weakness after establishing a new high price, failing to 5 points under yesterday's close.

Prices continued their upward trend during the morning. The bidding up of several specialties to new high records indicated active resumption of pool operations, which apparently was influenced by the better tone of foreign and domestic news and the prospects for easier money rates. Uncovering of a few weak spots, such as Crucible, Republic and Midvale Steels and United Retail Stores, failed to halt the advance elsewhere. The extent of covering operations indicated that there had been a substantial increase in the short interests during the past two weeks. Kresge and American Radiator were among the stocks to brak through for new high records, the former gaining 8¾ points and the latter 4. National Biscuit extended its gain to 8 points and Lackawanna railroad touched 139, up 4 points. Call money opened and renewed at 4% per cent.

The buying movement was extended to new groups during the afternoon, copper can issues being bid up sharply, as were some of the low priced rails, oils and rubbers. The closing was strong.

GRAIN MARKETS.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 3.

WHEAT—Uneasiness regarding a possible unfavorable outcome of peace conferences between the Turks and the allies led to higher prices in the wheat market today during the early dealings. The fact that the Canadian visible supply showed a decrease notwithstanding big receipts was a further bullish influence. It was also a subject of comment that Liverpool quotations were showing more firmness than had been looked for. The opening here, which varied from ¾ to ⅞c higher, with December $1.04⅞@1.05⅛ and May $1.08⅝@1.08⅝, was followed by slight additional gains.

Subsequently, the market eased off, influenced more or less by bearish estimates of the Canadian yield and of world import requirements, but the effect failed to last. The close was firm, ¾ to 1⅝c net higher, with December $1.06@1.06⅛ and May $1.08⅛@1.08⅝.

CORN—Corn and oats displayed independent strength, offerings being small and demand good. After opening ⅛ to ¼c higher, December 60⅛@60¾c, the corn market scored a little further advance.

Exporters were said to be after corn and bullish crop estimates continued to stimulate general buying. The close was firm, ⅝ to 1⅝c net higher, with December 61⅛c.

OATS—Oats started ⅛c to ⅜ to ½c higher, December 37⅝c, and later continued to ascend.

PROVISIONS—Absence of any pressure to sell tended to uphold the provision market, despite lower hog values.

WOMAN BECOMES SENATE MEMBER

Felton, survived. He is living at Rome, Ga.

In 1886 Mrs. Felton toured the state of Georgia in the interest of temperance. She is an active member of the Daughters of the American revolution, member of the Colonial Dames of America and one of the three earliest members of Atlanta's woman's club.

The new senator is the author of two biographies which are widely read throughout the south. She has been a regular contributor to various publications for many years. She is active in looking after her business interests which includes large farm holdings in Bartow county.

No Actual Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Though Mrs. W. H. Felton, appointed to succeed the late Senator Watson of Georgia, probably will not have the opportunity of actual service in the senate because the present recess of congress she will have the pay and perequisites as well as a title of a senator until a successor is chosen.

Mrs. Felton is not expected to come to Washington as she may take the oath of office in Georgia and receive her commission from the governor there.

HIGH HOPES FOR NEAR EAST PEACE AS ENVOYS MEET the new fire in that city would be attributed to Armenian refugees.

Turks Raid Outpost.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 3.—The Turkish irregulars have raided a Greek outpost in the Tchalja zone, between thirty and forty miles northwest of Constantinople, killing ten Greeks, according to word received here today. The Turks were driven off.

The foregoing dispatch may refer to the attack officially reported in a Greek communication, which said: "Turkish irregulars raided a Greek outpost near Salivri, massacreing eleven Greeks The Turks were driven off after a Greek counter attack in which twenty-six Turks were killed."

This Greek official report was issued Saturday. Salivri is in the Tchalja zone.

Scene Is Strange One.

MUDANIA, Oct. 3.—Never was there a stranger setting for a conference of world powers than this little village on the southern shore of the Sea of Marmora. Even the presence of the great warships of England, France and Italy seemed incongruous in the tiny cove belted with rocks and mud which is Mudania's harbor, for their only neighbors were a few scattered fishing boats and nondescript barges.

Nothing about Mudania is impressive, save for the bulk of snow-capped Mount Olympus, rising majestically in the distance. The town is squalid and depressing. There is not a single building of architectural pretentons, the houses are of mud, shaped like huge beetles and the stores thrust their latticed windows into the narrow, crooked streets

There is no sound of railway or motor truck to disturb. There is no evidence of modern life, save two telephone wires which run into the offices of the police chief and the mayor. There is no restaurant, no postoffice, no busy markets—no evidence of the modern world of business except the unpretentious office of the Standard Oil company.

Such was the setting today of the conference to which the military representatives of the allied powers hurried across seventy miles of water from Constantinople.

The departure from Galata was fixed for 7 o'clock in the morning with the arrival here at noon and the opening of the conference at 1 o'clock. The British delegation included the commander-in-chief, Brig. General Sir Charles Harington and Colonel W. H. Gribbon and Major T. G. G. Heywood of the general headquarters staff. The French and Italian deputations were similarly limited.

Every effort was made to maintain complete secrecy and privacy for the conference and the bay was effectively barricaded as though the surface of the sea of Marmora were marked out with barbed wire entanglements. For forty-eight hours nobody has been permitted to enter the area around the gulf of Gemlek without special papers.

Will Lay Down Terms.

LONDON, Oct. 3—The Turkish nationalists today will lay before the representatives to the allies at Mudania, the terms on which they are willing to agree to a suspension of military movement,

Constantinople dispatches say the Kemalist proposals, an outline of which has reached the allied headquarters there, were deemed discussable but not acceptable by a council yesterday of the allied high commissioners, ambassadors, generals and admirals.

Franklin Bouillon, the French envoy whose personal conversation with Mustapha Kemal Pasha made the armistice conference possible, expressed the belief that an agreement will be reached.

The Turkish proposals are said to include formal guarantees concerning the evacuation of Thrace by the Greek army, occupation of the territory by allied troops and transfer of the civil administration to Kemalist functionaries.

Every London newspaper today devotes its principal columns to the meeting and furnishes its readers with its own version of what is likely to happen.

In anti-Greek quarters, the activities of former premier Venizelos in Paris and London continue to be viewed with the greatest suspicion. The daily press say Venizelos has advised the revolutionary government in Athens to agree in principle to the evacuation of eastern Thrace, but to tell the allies that Greece will not evacuate the territory until the powers have decided she shall do so as part of the final peace terms.

The newspaper says the effect of this plan, if adopted, would be that the Greek army would remain in Thrace for many weeks longer and that the conditions arising from this inevitably would bring war between the British and Turks. It calls upon the British government and public to put a stop to "this dangerous intrigue."

REPORT STRIKERS RETURN TO WORK

Burlington Officials Say That Twenty Shopmen Applied Monday Morning.

Fifteen More in Line On Tuesday—Employment Office Is Closed.

Twenty striking shopmen applied for work in the Burlington shops on the lines west Monday and fifteen more had asked for jobs Thursday morning within telephone radius of Lincoln according to the Burlington officials who are keeping careful count of the returning workers.

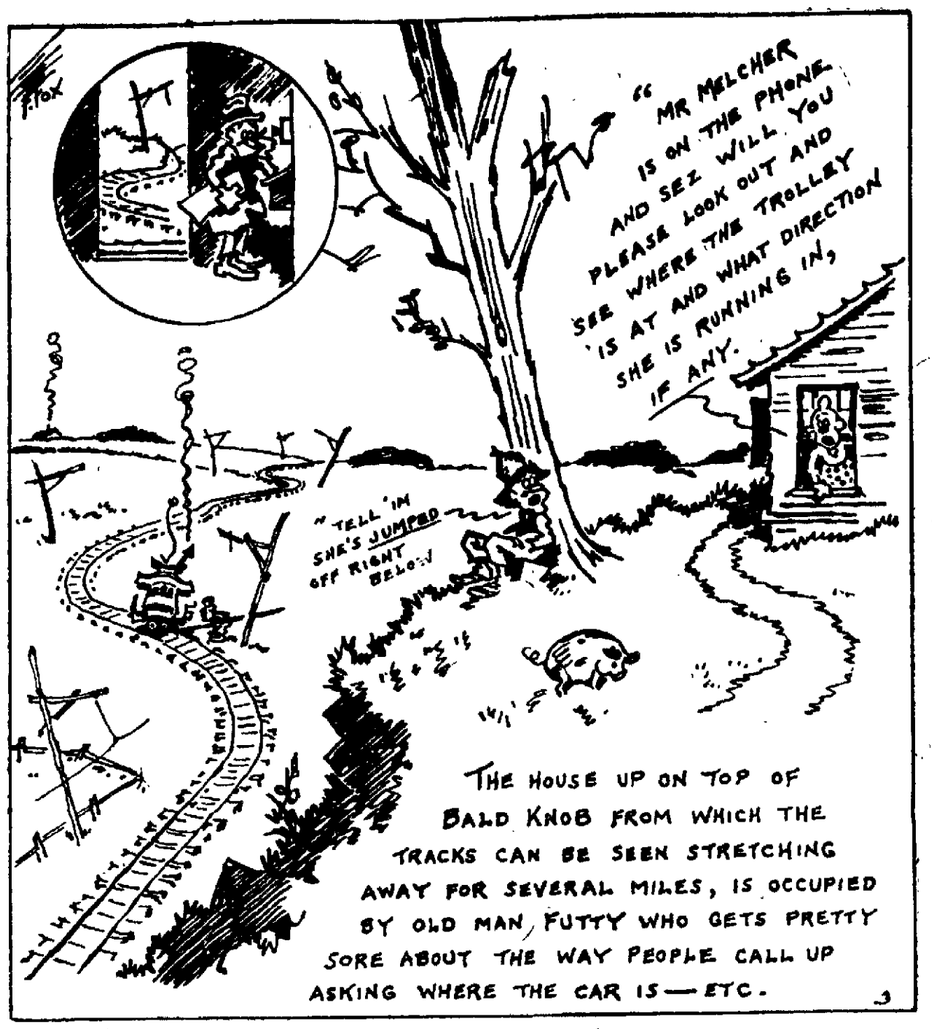

Nine strikers, all who struck, at Red Cloud applied for work Monday, one report shows but there was a place for only one of them, according to E. Flynn, general superintendent. Most of those who are applying are accepted. Saturday and Monday, two boilermakers, five machinists and one electrician and a helper returned to work at Havelock.

Burlington lines west report the heaviest business in its history at present. The rush of coal shipments, heavy stock shipments, the sugar beet demands in the west and the usual grain movement, are combining to tax the system to the limit but it is being handled promptly and with no special hindrance from the strikers.

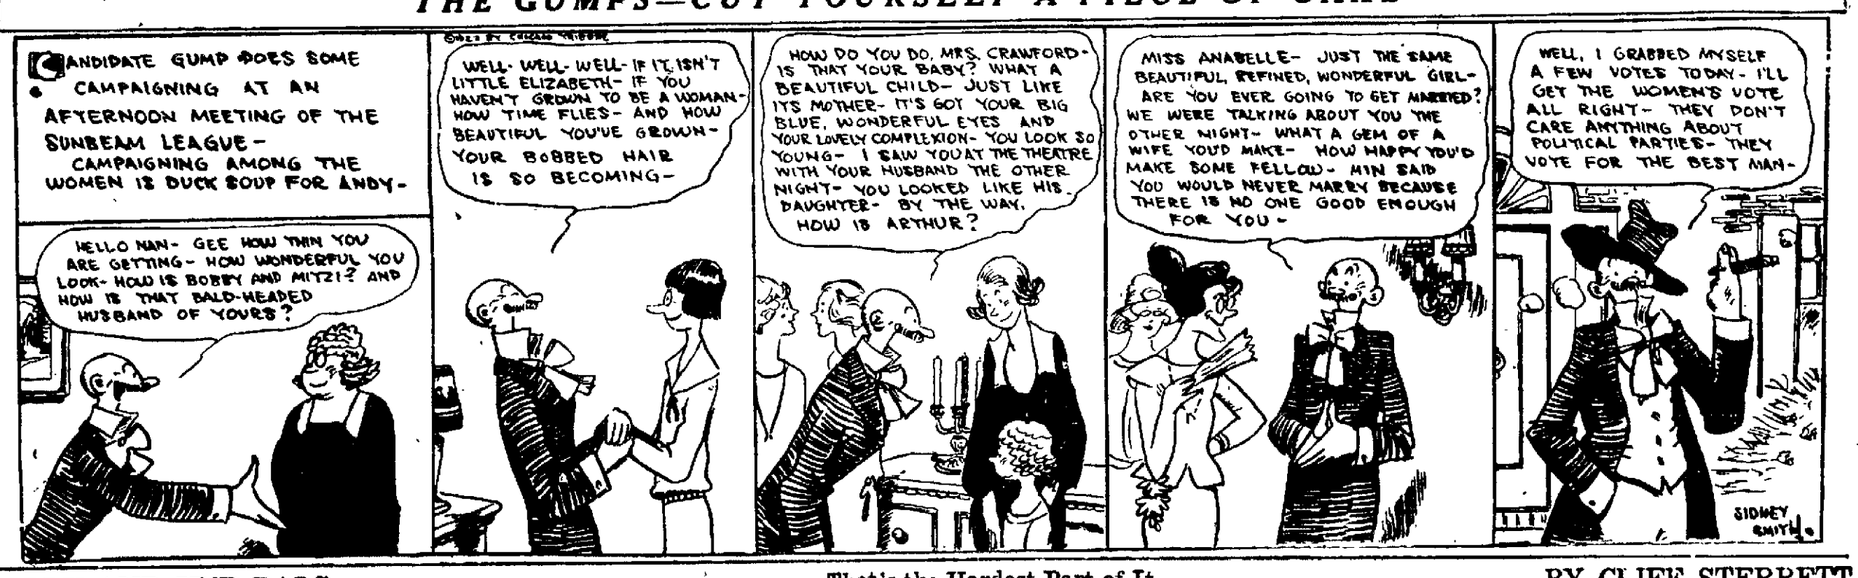

At Havelock private interests are putting in a big restaurant in contemplation of the early closing of the camps in the Havelock shops. Most of the nine hundred workers there in the places of the strikers will be turned out to secure their food and lodgings in and around Havelock. No trouble is anticipated when this change is made.

At Lincoln the employment and guard combined headquarters has been closed and those appying for work must go directly to the shop superintendent to apply in person. This indicates that the Burlington is no longer especially anxious to secure additional help.

Chicagoan Fights Stock Increase in Firm Woods Heads

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—T. J.
